Finns Turn From Red Peace To Seek Defense Alliance

BOUNDARY TREATY IS DISCUSSED WITH NORWAY, SWEDEN

People in Tears Are Told They 'Must Exist in Mutilation'; Tanner
Thanks Allies and U.S.

BULLETIN
SHANGHAI, March 14.— (Thursday) — (AP) — Resumption of fighting between Soviet Russian and Japanese troops on the border of Outer Mongolia was reported here today.

Fighting in that area was ended last September by an armistice.

Reports said Soviets had advanced five miles.

By LYNN HEINZELING.
HELSINKI, March 13.—
(AP) — Tragic Finland, its mourning etched in black against the softly falling snow, was told by its leadership today it must exist "in a state of mutilation," striving by unity to resurrect itself again and seeking to consolidate its defense with mutual guarantees with Norway and Sweden.

In the sudden hush of armistice at the historic hour of 11 a. m.
(3 o'clock this morning Atlanta time), Foreign Minister Vaino Tanner told his people by radio that Finland's defense against Russia had foundered on the "unwillingness or inability" of democratic states—specifically Sweden and Norway and behind them the western Allies—to send troops or allow troops to pass their borders.

"We Are Too Small."

"All that can be said against us," he said, sadly, "is that as a nation we are too small."

Tanner, speaking to newspapermen, denied that the western powers had pressed Finland to continue the war; gave them thanks for "large quantities" of war material "although they had no obligation to Finland" and expressed gratitude to the United States for monetary aid and for the volunteers who have come from Amer-

Army Not Consulted.

"He disclosed, however, that this unhappy peace" was made without consultation with the army command.

"Peace," he explained, "is a political question. We did not ask the army headquarters about it.
The only thing we asked was the position on the front."

He also disclosed Finland, Sweden and Norway had discussed common guarantees of their frontiers before the Finnish negotiations even went to Moscow. These conversations looking toward a defensive alliance will continue, within a few days, he declared.

The defensive alliance, if it is

Roosevelt Denounces Terms Of Peace Imposed on Finland

Reasserts Belief Small Nations Should Be Protected From Conquest by More Powerful Neighbors; Says Finns Earned Peace.

WASHINGTON, March 13.
(UP) — President Roosevelt today denounced the peace terms which Russia imposed on Finland and reaffirmed his belief that small, independent nations should be made safe from conquest by their more powerful neighbors.

Mr. Roosevelt said that the little republic, in the face of overwhelming odds, now has "won the moral right to live in everlasting peace and independence in the land they have so bravely defended."

The Finnish people and government, he said, "have been compelled to yield territory, and to accept a material weakening of their own future defense of their independence.
The ending of this war does not yet clarify the inherent right of small nations to the maintenance of their integrity against attack by a superior force."

The statement was shown to Finnish Minister Hjalmar Procope by Secretary of State Cordell Hull before it was made public. Procope, who entered Hull's office in a state of dejection, emerged smiling.

Mr. Roosevelt's statement did not go into the question of United States recognition of Soviet gains as result of the peace treaty, but it was indicated that they probably would be recognized eventually because of the formal diplomatic nature of the peace pact.

The administration generally has laid down a policy of non-recognition of territory acquired by aggression.

Meanwhile, congressional feeling against Russia's peace terms continued to run high, bringing forth a fresh suggestion by Senator Guy M. Gillette, Democrat, Iowa, that the United States break off diplomatic relations with the Soviet.

DEADLY EXPLOSIVE STUDIED SECRETLY BY SENATE GROUP

Minutes Burned To Protect Formula of Weapon That Would 'Destroy All Within Miles'.

WASHINGTON, March 13.—
(UP) — The senate military affairs committee today heard a dramatic description of an explosive allegedly so destructive that minutes of the session were burned to prevent the formula from falling into the hands of a foreign power.

The inventor of the explosive,
Lester P. Barlow, spent two hours behind the closed doors of the committee room, presenting affidavits, photographs and descriptions of his experiments. The committee then recessed until Monday when War and Navy Department officials will be consulted.

Bomb Designer.

Barlow, who is a bomb designer for the Glenn L. Martin plant in Baltimore, Md., held patents on explosives used during the first World War. He later used the War Department and collected more than $600,000 for alleged infringements.

The new explosive, he told reporters, is a combination of liquid oxygen and carbon, admittedly the most deadly known.

Senator Edwin C. Johnson, Democrat, Colorado, presented the motion to destroy the committee record. Senator Gerald P. Nye, Republican, North Dakota, said that the papers were placed in a waste basket and burned in the presence of the committee. The motion to destroy was opposed by Senator A. B. Chandler, Democrat, Kentucky, who told reporters he believed the committee would experience difficulty in presenting its case to the senate without the minutes.

Devastating Blast.

Nye described the explosive as "devastating" and said that it would give any nation an "incomparable advantage in wartime."
The detonation, he continued, "utterly destroys everything within miles. Never in 15 years," he added, "have I seen a senate committee so thoroughly impressed."

Barlow explained that the wartime potentialities of liquid oxygen were first realized when the Germans bombarded Barcelona during the Spanish civil war. A bomb dropped on a huge apartment house, he said, smashed the structure and killed hundreds of people "besides sending the world's military experts into furor."

Upon study, he said, he became convinced that a method superior to that used by the Germans could be devised. The German combination, he asserted, was highly dangerous to the user because of a too-rapid detonation.

"Absolutely Safe."

After a long period of "trial and error," he said, he discovered a method to prevent an explosion of the gases without a separate de-tonator, making the projectile "absolutely safe." He said he can get no hearing from American military authorities who allegedly claim it is impossible to utilize the mixture safely.

"They cannot be blamed for that," he declared, "because the explosive does things that are impossible by all previous standards."

His hearing before the military affairs committee was obtained through efforts of Nye and other senators impressed by his exposition.

Fulton County Deputy Sheriff W. W. Scarborough, right, above, admitted at the coroner's inquest into the flog death of Ike Gaston that he was exalted cyclops of the East Point Ku Klux Klan. He denied the Klan committed floggings but said that his organization "burned crosses and held parades in sections where they had been told people weren't doing right." At left is County Policeman John T. Carter, helping the coroner's jury.

Mrs. Ike Gaston is shown above as she appeared at the coroner's inquest yesterday into the death by flogging of her husband. She was unable to help in tracing leads to her husband's attackers.

KLAN OPERATIONS BARED; DEPUTY IS EXALTED CYCLOPS

Another Sheriff's Aide and East Point Policeman Identified as Members of Torture Band.

By WILLARD COPE.

Returning its verdict after an all-day inquest in which four men, one a Fulton county deputy sheriff and another an East Point city policeman, were identified as participants in similar floggings, a coroner's jury last night found Ike Gaston, Hapeville barber, "came to his death as the result of an unlawful beating administered by three or more men, the identities of whom were not revealed by the evidence."

The verdict climaxed a day of sensational developments in which operations of the Ku Klux Klan were bared and several flogging victims testified the cars in which they were abducted bore the emblem of Fulton county.

Denied by Officers.

G. W. Wright, a farmer near Stonewall, testified two of the members of the night riding party which whipped him in June, 1938, were Herb Eidson, a deputy sheriff, and T. A. Andrews, a member of the police department of East Point. Eidson and Andrews vigorously denied the accusation, saying they "never saw Wright before in their lives."

L. G. Rainwater, who gave his address as 985 Crew street, testified Eidson was a member of a party which carried him off on a night in November, 1938, but did not whip him.

Only one witness, Alex Smith, a mill hand, testified directly in connection with the Gaston slay-ing. He said he saw three men drive up to Gaston's barber shop last Thursday night and carry him off in a car. Smith was unable to pick out any of the men from a large group of men assembled by Coroner Paul Donehoo and Assistant Solicitor General Daniel Duke at the inquest.

Gaston's badly beaten body was found several miles from East Point early last Friday morning.

Lash Identified.

T. E. Young, of East Point, testified he was whipped on the night of August 12, 1939. He identified a pronged lash picked up near where Gaston's body was found as the same lash used on him. Duke had the flogging victim remove part of his clothing and attempted to prove to the jury from the welts on the victim's body that the same lash was used to whip Young.

Coroner Donehoo and Duke paraded a number of flogging victims before the jury in an effort to show Gaston was the victim of a similar attack.

After identifying the lash,
Young "fingered" W. C. Amerson, already held in one flogging case, as a member of the party which whipped him. He also picked a man giving his name as J. R.
Banks as one of the members of the party. Banks denied any participation.

Two Others Identified.

Two other men, Bill Walton, of near East Point, and W. C. Bishop were identified by witnesses as participants in floggings, although both denied participation.

E. K. Ramage, a printer, testified Bishop was the leader of a party which flogged him last year.

CAA Official Dies In Biplane Crash

HICKSVILLE, N. Y., March 13.
(AP) — William Stanley Rust, an engineering inspector of the Civil Aeronautics Authority, was killed today in the crash of an experimental biplane near this Long Island village. The plane, in which he was alone, went into a tailspin.

Rust, a lieutenant in the army air corps reserve, had come here recently from Hamilton Field, Cal.

Use for Elizabeth Hinted by Briton

LONDON, March 13.—(AP)—Sir Samuel Hoare, lord privy seal, hinted in the house of commons today that Britain might use the giant liner Queen Elizabeth before the war is over.

His hint was contained in a statement balancing Britain's shipping losses against new construction—a figure which showed net loss of 230,000 tons but did not include the 85,000-ton Queen Elizabeth now berthed in New York.

New Pact Looms For Russia, Italy

ROME, March 13.—(AP)—A Russian trade commission, which maintains headquarters at Milan, may come to Rome shortly to negotiate a new trade agreement with Italy, authoritative sources said tonight.

The prospect aroused speculation whether a definite move might not be afoot to bring Rome and Moscow closer together. Their relations now are touchy.

THREE DEPUTIES IN SHERIFF'S CHOIR NAMED IN PROBE

Aldredge Says If It Is Proved 'They Have Been Messing Around' He Will Fire Them.

All three of the sheriff's deputies mentioned in the coroner's inquest into floggings and the death of Ike Gaston are prominent in church work, and all three sing lustily in the sheriff's choir.

Herb Edson, according to Sheriff J. C. (Mott) Aldredge, is the leader of the choir, which goes about the county singing at churches, fish fries, chitlin' suppers and the like.

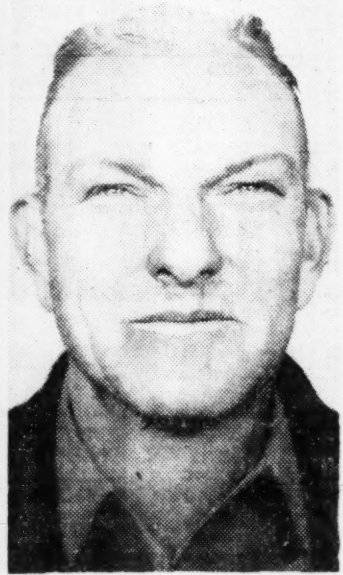

Deputy W. W. Scarborough is also a singer, in both the sheriff's choir and the choir of the East Point Christian church, in which he is a lay leader.

Deputy Edwin Burdette is a Baptist, and another valued member of the sheriff's singers.

All three, Sheriff Aldredge said, were thoroughly investigated by him before he placed them on his ticket. He looked into their honesty, their standing in the community, the rapidity with which they paid their debts, and their church affiliations. He did not inquire into their memberships in lodges or secret organizations, so he did not know whether they were Klansmen, he said.

"If those three men or any one of them had anything to do with any floggings," the sheriff said,

Named as Flogger

"I'm the worst fooled man in Fulton county. I'd bet my last dime I'd bet my house and lot—I'd bet my life they haven't had anything to do with such a thing.

"Course, you can't always tell about a man. And if it is proved they had been messing around like that it's just too bad for them. I won't stand for it a minute. They'll go out of here before they have a chance to get a chair warm.

"But it will have to be proved on their first."

The sheriff said that Edson, before he became a deputy, was a Red Oak dairyman. Burdette was a clerk in a grocery store, and Scarborough was owner of a grocery.

MATE WASN'T MEANT TO BE WED, SAYS WIFE

LOS ANGELES, March 13.—(AP) Actor Alan Curtis "just wasn't cut out to be a married man," Priscilla Lawson, screen actress, testified in winning a divorce.

The divorce was obtained under their true names of Priscilla and Harry Weberroth. They were married in Las Vegas, Nev., in November, 1937. "He would say, 'I don't love you, I don't want you, right in front of people,'" Miss Lawson testified.

RIVERS SUGGESTS BROADENED PATROL

'State FBI' Hinted in Discussion of Recent Flogging Cases.

Possibility that the legislature might broaden the powers of the state highway patrol to make it something in the nature of a state FBI was hinted by Governor Rivers yesterday during a discussion of the recent floggings in Fulton county for which four men have been indicted.

The Governor expressed the opinion that the powers of the patrol, which possesses good fingerprinting and identification departments, might well be broadened. They now come into cases only at the request of local authorities.

He made it plain it was not his plan to "push the state forces on them if they do not want us," but added that the patrol could be of outstanding value in making investigations.

FLOG PROBE BARES KLAN OPERATIONS

for "being drunk and disorderly." Mrs. Ramage identified Bishop as one of two men who came to the Ramage home and summoned her husband.

A "father and son," whipping was brought to light during the inquiry. O. N. Conkle and his son, Levi, of near Hapeville, said they were taken out and whipped on the night of September 15, 1939. The elder Conkle gave his age as 30 and the son said he is 30. They were unable to identify any of their tormentors.

Deputy Heads Klan.

Relentless questioning by Coroner Donehoo and Duke brought these disclosures:

1. Fulton County Deputy Sheriff W. W. Scarborough admitted that he is the exalted cyclops, or head officer, of the East Point Ku Klux Klan and that his fellow deputy sheriffs, Herb Edson and Edward Burdette, also are members.

2. Gaston's father-in-law, Julian Astin, admitted he had written a letter to "East Point Klansmen" thanking them for the good Klan parade had done last summer before Gaston's barber shop. He also admitted telling a "Dr. Holt" at the East Point police station one week before the fatal beating that this Klan action was the only thing that ever had affected Gaston's drinking habits. He denied suggesting the beating or any similar action.

3. A young woman companion of E. B. Benson, who operates a restaurant next door to Gaston's barbershop at Hapeville Junction, East Point, declared that Benson had observed to officers late on the Thursday night of the beating that Gaston "probably has left" his shop, although but a short time before he had seen the barber lying drunk upon the floor of the shop and apparently unconscious.

Suspicious Related.

4. County Policeman J. W. Gilbert, who has been most active in investigating the flogging, testified to seeing under circumstances he called suspicious in conjunction with other floggings. Deputies Edson and Burdette, the former's brother Dan and Henry Kauffman. He also described certain automobiles used in various floggings.

5. Deputy Scarborough admitted possession of an automobile which Duke declared, in examining "county automobile" reported by witnesses to have been seen in connection with floggings.

Scarborough was made to admit under grilling, both by Duke and Coroner Donehoo, that a single letter of request to his Klan would result in the burning of a fiery cross and a parade in the vicinity of any place where "someone wasn't doing like he ought to."

The robbed unit operated around East Point, College Park, Egan Park, Stonewall, Fairburn and smaller places in the general region.

He insisted that the Klan went no further than to parade and burn crosses and denied any connection with floggings.

Denies Questions.

"Didn't you tell someone at the coroner's about a certain man? Our committee has passed on him?" Duke demanded.

"Absolutely not," declared Scarborough.

"And that you all had better not pick him up when a certain officer is on duty because he doesn't like that kind of thing?"

"I defy anybody to say I said that."

"Didn't you say, 'This man needs the leather—he's got to have the leather?'"

"Never in my life have I said such a thing."

Scarborough expressed indignation that the Klan should have been accused of any floggings and declared a committee consisting of Burdette, Edson and George Cameron had been appointed to investigate floggings. He said nothing ever had been accomplished.

Records Destroyed.

All records of the Klan have been destroyed, he said he believed, and Duke immediately sought a summons for Luke Trimble, whom Scarborough named as the Klan secretary.

The cyclops, under heavy questioning, finally gave the procedure of the Klan as being this:

A letter is received asking for a cross-burning or parade at a given location.

There is no investigation. Imperial Wizard James W. Colescott is telephoned for permission. This inevitably is granted, the witness said, although he was not permitted to further information.

The demonstration then is staged. A party from the East Point Klan goes to the designated point and meets "a committee" from the locality requesting the cross-burning.

"Aren't you trading on the impression of people generally that the Klan does conduct these beatings?" Scarborough was asked.

Piece-Meal Admission. He denied this directly, but under further detailed insistence made the admission piece meal.

"It is a resort to intimidation," Coroner Donehoo told him. "Did the Klan ever stop a flogging?" asked the coroner.

"I don't know of any."

"If you found some of your members had been in a flogging what would you do?"

"We would banish them."

The cyclops named Henry Cawthorn and Bailey Cawthorn as former members of his organization.

In Robes. The witness told of one occasion when he warned a parking lot proprietor about getting more light when the Klan paraded by.

"Did you tell him who you were—that you were a deputy sheriff?" pressed Duke.

"No. I was enrobed."

"What did that have to do with it?"

"I didn't care to identify myself."

"Why aren't you willing to let people know who you are or see your faces when you go out that way at night in your regalia?"

"We just don't do it."

Duke suggested to Scarborough that there was an exchange understanding, whereby Klans of East Point, Lithonia, College Park and Oakland City sent members to assist each other in their undertakings. Scarborough said it wasn't done.

The witness attempted at one point to discourse upon the nocturnal conduct of young people, parked in automobiles around drink stands, and offered the belief that "if something isn't done—" but was interrupted by Duke and Donehoo, who told him to confine himself to answering questions.

Tells of Autos.

Officer Gilbert's testimony concerning automobiles had specifically to do with a blue Buick identified as belonging to Henry Cawthorn, and a dark Terraplane.

He told of a talk he had with Herb Edson after trailing the deputy, his brother Dan, Deputy Burdette and Henry Kauffman one night soon after the lashing of a preacher in Egan Park. Herb Edson demanded to know his reason for following them while Dan Edson sought to calm his brother.

On the night of the whipping of "a Mr. Conkle and his boy," Gilbert testified, he saw Herb Edson, Burdette and about a dozen men standing about the Hapeville police station. Near by was the blue Buick. There were three other automobiles, and Gilbert's partner, you went into the shop that last time?"

"I can't swear that I said it—I don't remember it."

"But you can't swear you didn't say it?"

"I suppose not."

Mindling Testifies. An interesting interlude was the examination of Forecaster George W. Mindling, of the United States Weather Bureau, as to conditions that night.

Benson had been unable, he said, to remember whether it was raining while he went for the police.

The forecaster, consulting the voluminous record book he brought with him, said it had rained from 3:12 p. m. Thursday until 9:05 a. m. Friday. The temperature did not go below 34 degrees.

The incident recalled a legend of Abraham Lincoln, that the then sagacious young country lawyer proved by an almanac there had been no moon on the night of a murder, after witnesses had testified they recognized Lincoln's client by the moonlight.

At the outset of the hearing Andrew White, negro farmhand, who found Gaston's body in a snowy field three miles below Ben Hill, told of his discovery. A. J. Redwine, owner of the land, gave formal testimony, and Sergeant J. L. Perry, of the county identification bureau, described the scene and finding the heavy, barbarous whip.

Benson Recalled. After Miss Check's testimony, Benson was recalled.

"Didn't you know some men were going to pick up Ike that night?" Duke asked him.

"No."

"What made you say you thought Ike had left, even before

FANFARE HERALDS RED CROSS DRIVE AS IT OPENS TODAY

50,000 Members Are To Be Goal in This Area; Parade and Speeches Planned Here

The great humanitarian army—the American Red Cross—will begin its annual call for volunteers this morning in Atlanta, Fulton and DeKalb counties.

Fifty thousand members are being sought in this area, an increase of 20 per cent over the 32,000 enrollment last year.

Opening the roll call with fanfare, an army of volunteers will form at the Masonic temple this morning and parade down Peachtree street to Five Points, where official ceremonies will inaugurate the 1940 drive for local members.

Seven Floats.

In the parade will be seven floats, members of the Red Cross directors, Boy Scouts, Junior and Senior Red Cross members, the Gray Girdles, nurses and others. At Five Points, beginning at 11:30 o'clock, the ceremonies will be broadcast for 30 minutes over WSB and WAGA, with Lambdin Kay as master of ceremonies. The color guard and band from Fort McPherson will be in charge of flag-raising ceremonies, and at noon Frank Reynolds, mayor pro tem., will raise the Red Cross flag and read the mayor's proclamation, officially setting aside the dates of March 14 through April 4 as the time for all Atlantans to join the Red Cross.

Special Wrapper.

The morning bottle of milk today will come capped in a special wrapper which will entreat the consumer to join the Red Cross. All dairies in the city are co-operating and the Red Cross headquarters here have distributed 30,000 of these wrappers.

Scheduled to speak at the Five Points exercise are: Dr. Frank K. Boland, chairman of the Atlanta chapter; Dr. Sam Guy, chairman of the DeKalb chapter; Oby T. Brewer, Murphy Candler, Dr. Herman L. Turner, Mrs. E. D. Rivers, Mrs. Preston Arkwright, Ed Almand, Major B. F. Hurless, Jerry Wells, C. A. Stair, Red Cross nurses and Gray Ladies.

This group will canvass the downtown business section:

Mother of Pastor Weds In Laurens; Son Unites Couple

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION.
DUBLIN, Ga., March 13.—The Rev. C. K. Everett, Dublin Baptist minister, was called this week to perform the marriage ceremony uniting his mother, Mrs. Alma Everett, prominent Dublin resident, and George E. Cullen, Laurens county farmer.

The ceremony, performed at the home of the bride, was witnessed by only a few members of the immediate families and intimate friends.

HALL FARMER HELD IN SLAYING OF WIFE

Confession Is Reported by Sheriff After Surrender of Hoke Jones.

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION.
GAINESVILLE, Ga., March 13. Sheriff Arthur W. Bell reported Hoke S. Jones, 32-year-old Hall county farmer, was in Hall county jail here after having signed a confession that he shot and killed his wife early this morning at the home of her father, John Abercrombie, in the lower edge of Lumpkin county. The sheriff said Jones would probably be turned over to Sheriff Jack Gillespie, of Lumpkin county.

Driving to Gainesville a short time after the shooting, Jones parked his truck in the jail yard, locked it, came into the jail and surrendered to deputies, who said they found two guns in the machine.

Sheriff Bell said Jones' confession related that his wife "had planned to kill me for a long time." The sheriff further quoted Jones as saying he went to her father's home before daylight, with a shotgun and rifle that she came out of the house and went into the woods, and when she returned he told her to "wait a minute," then shot her with the shotgun. After she fell, his confession was quoted as saying he fired one shot at her with the rifle, not knowing if the shot struck her.

Reports reaching here were that she lived only a short time. The Joneses had been separated several months, it was stated, and Mrs. Jones had filed suit for alimony in January. They have two children. Jones is a son of Clem Jones, Hall county farmer.

EDUCATORS GATHER FOR MACON PARLEY

G. E. A. Convention To Open Tonight in Municipal Auditorium.

MACON, Ga., March 13.—(P)—Arrival of Mark Smith, president of the Georgia Education Association, today threw pre-convention events in high gear.

The convention will open Thursday night at 8 o'clock in the municipal auditorium. In the afternoon there will be a general assembly, preceded by a series of events, including a meeting of elementary school principals, at John W. Burke school, and a meeting of superintendents, board members and trustees.

Several conferences were under way today.

Because of the crowded condition of hotels, a registration booth for rooms in private residences was opened by the Chamber of Commerce at the auditorium. Requests for rooms began to be made early this morning.

LIQUOR FORBIDDEN AT POLICE MEETING

State Chiefs Plan Elberton Conclave Today.

ELBERTON, Ga., March 13.—(P)—A barbecue at the city park and visits to places of interest have been planned for Georgia's police chiefs when they meet here tomorrow and Friday for their annual convention—and there is to be no hard liquor.

The convention committee for the Georgia Police Chiefs Association put down the law on convention conviviality in these words:

"When you come to the convention it will be well to remember that you are coming to devise ways and means of better protecting the people whom you serve. You are not coming to a drunken party. There will be no liquor or other hard drinks on hand. This is a business meeting, and will be conducted as such."

On hand will be chiefs, assistant chiefs, captains, and lieutenants of police forces throughout the state. They plan to discuss problems of the constabulary, elect officers, and choose next year's place of assembly.

MAN, GRANDMOTHER BURIED SAME DAY

Rites Also Are Held for Second Victim of Claxton Crash.

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION.
GLENWOOD, Ga., March 13.—Joint funeral rites were held yesterday afternoon in Glenwood Baptist church for Mrs. Sarah Virginia McDaniel, 71, who died Monday, and her grandson, Elmer J. Purvis, 23, one of two men killed early yesterday in a truck-automobile collision at Claxton.

The other crash victim, Edwin Bishop, 23, meanwhile was buried in Old Canoochee cemetery in Emanuel county. Mrs. McDaniel and Mr. Purvis were buried in Glenwood cemetery.

Mrs. McDaniel, widow of L. L. McDaniel, was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Silas Browning, of Laurens county. She is survived by three sons, J. J. S. L. and L. S. McDaniel Jr., all of Glenwood; three daughters, Mrs. Robert Simpson, Mrs. Roy Kent and Mrs. A. A. Purvis, mother of the crash victim, all of Glenwood.

one brother, I. S. Browning, Dublin, and a sister, Miss Vina Browning, of Dublin.

Besides his mother, Mrs. Purvis is survived by two brothers, Kelley and Berman Purvis, and four sisters, Misses Nonnie, Sylvia, Neva and Virginia Purvis, all of Glenwood.

Surviving Mr. Bishop are his wife, Mrs. Grace Lowery Bishop; a daughter, Jimmie Sue; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Bishop; one brother, Marsden Bishop, and a sister, Miss Aileen Bishop, all of Glenwood.

FOUR-YEAR-OLD CHILD HIT, KILLED BY TRUCK

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION.
BAINBRIDGE, Ga., March 13. Walter Jackson, four-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Bruton Yates, was killed today when struck by a truck on the Thomasville highway within the Bainbridge city limits. The child was hit while crossing from his home to his father's store.

Officers said no case had been made against the truck driver, whom they listed as V. L. Osborn, of Bainbridge.

The child is survived by his parents, a half-brother, and three half-sisters.

Industrialization is increasing rapidly in Brazil.

COLUMBUS TO INVITE BIG ROTARY CONCLAVE

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION.
COLUMBUS, Ga., March 13.—Members and officials of about 60 Rotary clubs of Georgia and Alabama will be invited to Columbus on April 11 for what President T. G. Reeves said will be the "biggest inter-city meeting of Rotary ever held in Columbus."

Clubs invited will be the 54 Rotary organizations in Georgia, and a half-dozen in Alabama within a radius of 50 to 100 miles, including Montgomery.

PHYSICIAN ADMITS
NARCOTICS CHARGES*U. S. Sentencing Deferred
While Ellijay Doctor Undergoes Drug Cure.

Dr. Walter C. Chastain, Ellijay physician, yesterday entered a plea of guilty to two indictments charging violation of the federal narcotics law, before Judge E. Marvin Underwood in federal district court.

The judge delayed imposition of a five-year sentence, and ordered Dr. Chastain sent to the United States hospital at Lexington, Ky., to remain there until pronounced cured of the drug habit.

The physician was charged with illegally purchasing morphine from a Rome drug company on nine different occasions over a two-year period. Judge Underwood estimated that the doctor had purchased more than 18,000 grains of morphine in 19 months.

CARNEGIE LIBRARY DISPLAYS PHOTOS*Pictures Deal With Books and Movies.

Books and movies are relatives, and their relation is now pictured in a new exhibition hung on the second floor of the Carnegie library.

The display includes about 75 photographs, and is a vivid record of readers selecting books, and of side-lights in the life of a movie.

The pictures show jewels being made, wigs being styled, and all variations of props being selected, including the importing of foreign props. One of the most interesting photographs is of the plaster masks which are used in makeup.

The exhibition will be open to the public through April 1.

CONVERT BRINGS BACK BOOK AFTER 13 YEARS

GARY, Ind., March 13.—(P)—A man walked into the public library, handed Librarian Ralph Shaw a book, and said he'd stolen it in 1927. Then he asked Shaw what else he could do to make up for the theft.

"I've joined the church," the stranger said, "and this is one of the things I want to make right."

Shaw took the book and told the stranger he'd done all he could.

USE OF STORED GOLD FOR WAR AIDS URGED

WASHINGTON, March 13.—(P) Senator Townsend, Republican, Delaware, one of the critics of administration monetary policies, proposed today that $500,000,000 of the growing pile of the world's gold accumulated here be used by the United States to purchase strategic and critical war materials.

The Delaware Republican said he would introduce legislation to carry out his proposal.

FINAL PLEA MADE TO FREE GALLOGLY*Rehearing Motion Received by Texas Criminal Appeals Court.

AUSTIN, Texas, March 13.—(P) His final bid for freedom, at least in Texas tribunals, was made today by Richard Gray Gallogly, Georgia life-terminer seeking to escape extradition.

The court of criminal appeals, highest criminal court in the state, received formally a motion by the escapee's attorneys, who asked the court to reconsider a decision by which the youthful fugitive must be remanded to Georgia officers. There were no verbal arguments in support of the motion.

Frequently the court acts within one week on motions for rehearing in habeas corpus cases.

Governor W. Lee O'Daniel last October authorized extradition of Gallogly. Attorneys then began a court fight on habeas corpus proceedings. A Dallas county district refused a writ and the appellate court upheld the lower tribunal.

BLIND-FLYING CADETS TO HAVE BLIND DATES

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, March 13.—(P)—Uncle Sam's flying cadets at Randolph field are learning all about blind flying—and "blind dating."

Yes, Sir, blind dating—and with co-eds from Stephens College of Columbia, Mo. The girls will arrive March 22 on the college's 15th annual education and recreational tour. They're bound for Mexico City. With typical army efficiency, officers obtained descriptions of the co-eds, including height, to avoid any long and short of it.

PRISON BLAST PLOT UNCOVERED BY POLICE

PITTSBURGH, March 13.—(P) Police claim to have uncovered a plot to dynamite Western State penitentiary's north wall and open a possible path to freedom for 600 prisoners.

Detective Inspector Walter Monaghan reported routine questioning of a paroled convict disclosed the scheme which prison authorities said was fantastic and could not have been carried out successfully. An effort to blast the north wall failed in 1924.

MOTHER RE-ELECTED AS CHIEF OF POLICE

WARREN, N. H., March 13.—(P)—Mrs. Dorothy Clark, an old-fashioned mother of four, who was jokingly elected New England's only woman police chief a year ago, fooled the jokers by doing her job so well that admiring townspeople have re-elected her by a wide margin.

The 34-year-old woman, blond and blue-eyed, surprised the voters last year by accepting the post in the first place, and gave them another surprise by beginning strict enforcement of the law.

GEORGIA SEA FOODS TO FEATURE DINNER*Shrimp, Oysters, Crab and Stuffed Fish To Grace Products Tables.

Georgia dinner table products—usually thought of in terms of pork, sweet potatoes, corn, apple pie, or peaches and cream—will be shelved tonight in favor of Georgia seafoods served creole style when the annual Georgia products dinner takes place at 7 o'clock at the Atlanta Woman's Club.

On the menu will be Georgia seafood products including shrimp, crab, oysters, small individual stuffed fish, while supplementing these seafoods will be baked white potato on the half shell, broccoli, rolls, muffins, coffee, lemon sherbet and cake.

The program will be in keeping with the menu with Eugenia Dozier, presenting dance numbers including "The Claret Snuff," by Claude Hamilton; "The Shrimp Swing and Red-Snapper-Snap," by Gloria Dodd, and the "Blue Fish Waltz" by Eleanor Van Fleet.

H. M. Morris, of Athens, will speak on "How Customers May Help Distributors Co-operate With Georgia Agriculture," sponsoring improved relationship between stores, producers, manufacturers and consumers. Hamilton J. Bails, of Hogsansville, will speak on "The Consumers' Opportunity to Help Georgia Farm Prosperity. From a Farmer's Point of View."

Mrs. William G. McRae is chairman for the affair and co-chairmen are Mrs. Howard Patillo and Mrs. Fannie Mae Dabney. Honor guests will be Clark Howell, John Paschall, Miss Emily Woodward and Miss Susan Myrick.

A SERIOUS local scalp condition known as "alopecia areata" was causing baldness to spread rapidly over James Powell's scalp. He consulted a Thomas scalp specialist who soon checked Mr. Powell's abnormal hair loss and within twelve weeks had new hair growing on the bald spots.

Any local scalp disorder is serious and will cause baldness unless promptly checked. Dandruff and scalp itch are danger signals, warning you that you must take immediate steps to avoid further hair loss. Do as James Powell (and a quarter-million other men) did—consult a Thomas specialist. He'll show you how Thomas treatment can end your dandruff, stop scalp itch, and promote natural hair growth for you. Come in today for a free scalp examination.

MOVE LAUNCHED TO MAKE MUSEUM OF BULLOCH HALL

Women Democrats Ask Government To Buy Property and Convert It Into National Park.

Purchase by the federal government of Bulloch hall, famous old shrine of the ante-bellum south at Roswell, Ga., was urged yesterday in a resolution adopted by the women's division of the Fulton County Democrats.

The resolution, signed by Mrs. Chauncey Smith, Mrs. R. L. Turman, Mrs. B. M. Boykin and Mrs. Max E. Land, urged that Congressmen Robert Ramspeck obtain the purchase by the government.

Offered for sale. The hall and the 17 acres of ground about it, have been offered for sale by the present owners, the resolution pointed out, provided the ancient home itself be turned into a historic museum, and the land about be made into a national park.

The hall, built early in the 1800's, was erected by a descendant of Archibald Bulloch, first colonial governor of Georgia. In it Martha Bulloch, who became the mother of Theodore Roosevelt, and the grandmother of Eleanor

Embittered Parent

MRS. AINO ORGO TOSSAVAIN.

Roosevelt, wife of the President, was married.

Near Memorial.

The resolution also pointed out that the hall is near the partly completed memorial highway which leads from Kennesaw mountain to Stone mountain, along the old battle sites on Peachtree creek.

"Bulloch hall," the resolution said, "preserved today as originally built, is a valuable example of the Greek temple style of early American architecture, a style generally used in the south of the United States prior to the War Between the States. As a style it expressed the ideas of the Greek revival, then at its height, but in such a simple vernacular as to create a new style peculiarly indigenous to the southern people and to the southern soil. As such, built by slave labor from plans drawn by their owners, of the simplest construction conceivable, but durable, as proved by the fact that so many thousands of them still shelter human families, these old white-pillared houses of the south are esteemed by architectural authorities as our first and, perhaps, our only original expression in American architecture."

"Bulloch hall is visited by thousands of tourists annually. Restored, furnished, the hall filled with historic relics of the period, the grounds landscaped and exhibiting the flora of the section, it will become a national shrine providing for itself an increasing annual income. Never, heretofore, willing to sell, the owners of Bulloch hall are now offering it at the price quoted with the single restriction that the property must be used for museum and national park purposes only."

MRS. GERALD NYE GRANTED DIVORCE

Wife of U. S. Senator Charged Cruelty.

FARGO, N. D., March 13.—(AP) In a five-minute court proceeding today Anna M. Nye was granted a divorce from United States Senator Gerald P. Nye, North Dakota Republican, in her complaint, Mrs. Nye charged cruelty.

Neither of the Nyes were in court. They were represented by attorneys. Except for the fact that Senator Nye will be permitted to see his two children, Robert, 18, and James, 16, whose custody was given Mrs. Nye, terms of the settlement remained secret.

CONVICTS SEVER LEGS AS A PRISON PROTEST

HUNTSVILLE, Texas, March 13.—(AP)—O. J. S. Ellington, general manager of the Texas prison system, disclosed today two convicts had cut off their legs in the latest outbreak of self-mutilation at Eastham prison farm. He said both were drug addicts.

Eight other prisoners have broken arms, three have broken legs and one sliced the flesh off his heels. Ellington said a practice of serving coffee to men in the fields recently was discontinued, arousing enmity of the prisoners.

MOTHER SHOTS IN CUSTODY CASE

Embittered by Loss of Child, Woman Fires on Foster Parent.

CHICAGO, March 13.—(AP)—A young mother, embittered by loss of custody of her child, shot and seriously wounded the child's foster mother and slightly wounded a probation officer in a corridor of the juvenile court building today.

Mrs. Aino Orgo Tossavain, 26, the mother, formerly of Virginia, Minn., was seized by Policeman Joseph Healy who witnessed the affray. He said she held a pistol inside her muff and fired three times into Mrs. W. W. Buchanan's back.

A bullet superficially wounded Miss Irene Kavin, chief deputy probation officer of the juvenile court. Healy said the mother complained that Mrs. Buchanan, who had custody of the daughter, Carmen Orgo, 4 1/2, "kept me from seeing my child." Court records showed the child's father, Carmine, was drowned in 1937.

BRITISH FILM STAR WILL WED PRODUCER

LOS ANGELES, March 13.—(AP) Gracie Fields, the English movie star, and Monty Banks, her producer, will be married soon.

Monty said so today after the couple had been detected in a secret attempt yesterday to apply for a license. Banks explained the secrecy was occasioned by the illness of Miss Fields' mother.

Radium Discoverers' Daughter Will Lecture Here March 25

Eve Curie To Speak on Work of Her Mother.

Ms. Eve Curie, daughter of the discoverers of radium, and herself famous the world over as an author and one of the world's best dressed women, will speak in Atlanta on March 25.

Her address, sponsored by the Atlanta Wesleyan Alumnae, will be delivered in Glenn Memorial auditorium on the Emory University campus. Her subject, "Science and the Woman," will tell the story of her famous mother.

Noted for her talent and beauty, Ms. Curie only this year was chosen as one of the 10 best dressed women in Paris. Unlike her parents and her elder sister, she has sought fame in other fields than those of science.

As a young girl, she determined to become a pianist. She escaped to a Bohemian Paris her hard-working parents never knew, and devoted herself to music.

Had she practiced diligently enough, perhaps she would have become a great pianist. Instead, she abandoned a career as professional musician for that of the music critic.

Declining to make use of her famous name, she wrote for various Paris papers under a nom de plume. Successes followed and a few years later she was translating Broadway plays for the Paris stage.

Not long afterwards, she was urged to write a biography of her famous mother. For the first time, she wrote under her own name, turning out a work that has made her name famous in her own land and America.

Her lecture appearance here is one of 10 she will make on her current visit to the United States. She will be introduced to her Atlanta audience by Dr. Sara Branham, a Wesleyan alumna, now medical research worker of the United States Public Health Service.

Japan plans to subsidize its gold miners.

BARKLEY DENIES CRITICIZING RUSSELL

Georgian Tells of Reports; Hatch Bill Nears Showdown.

WASHINGTON, March 13.—(AP) Proponents pounced tenaciously today toward a senate showdown on the Hatch bill to circumscribe the political activities of state employees paid with federal funds. They listened unmoved to a warning from Senator Minton, Democrat, Indiana, that passage of the measure would "destroy the Democratic party."

(During the debate Senator Russell and Democratic Leader Barkley became involved in an unexpected discussion of the political activities of state employees, the United Press said.)

(Russell said he had heard from two senators that his action in attempting to bring up the farm bill last Monday was considered by Barkley as a "reflection on my leadership.") (Barkley earnestly denied making any such statement and said that his remarks must have been misconstrued.) Opponents failed in an effort to attach to the bill an amendment by Senator Bankhead, Democrat, Alabama, to make it unlawful for any person to contribute more than $1,000 a year to any candidate or campaign committee.

The vote was 45 to 36, with 35 Democrats and Senator LaFollette, Progressive, Wisconsin, supporting the amendment, and 23 Democrats voting against it. A solid bloc of Republican votes provided the margin to defeat the proposition.

NLRB AUTHOR FIGHTS SMITH AMENDMENTS

WASHINGTON, March 13.—(AP) Defenders of the Wagner labor act began an attack in force on the proposed Smith committee amendments today and simultaneously indicated willingness to accept less drastic changes. Senator Wagner, Democrat, New York, author of the labor relations statute, took the senate floor to declare that the Smith amendments would make the act a "concrete weapon for the oppression of labor."

HAMILTON TO SPEAK.

ELBERTON, Ga., March 13.—State Treasurer George B. Hamilton will address farmers of Elbert and surrounding counties at noon Friday, during recess of superior court here. The purpose, he states, is to inform the farmers as to the distribution of federal funds for improvement of rural residences.

How much, if anything, do you know about your body? Do you know anything of its chemical composition; the skeleton and the bones that form it; the skin and its pores; the muscular system; the nervous system; the location of the various organs in head, chest, abdomen; the circulatory system; the digestive and the reproductive systems?

In a brief, four thousand word leaflet, "The Human Body," available from The Constitution's Service Bureau, you will find condensed an easily understandable description of the principal organs of the human body and their functions. You can get all of this from an expensive textbook on anatomy, too; but most people—not physicians or specialists—do not have time or money to spend on such textbooks.

Finland Surrenders

There can be no denying that the surrender of Finland to Soviet dictated peace constitutes a major victory for Hitler and Germany in the war with the Anglo-French Allies. The results cannot fail to be injurious to the Allied cause, both in the military and diplomatic fields of combat.

Whether or not the Allies could have stiffened Finnish resistance with men and materials will always remain a moot question. The broader question of whether it would have been advantageous to the Allied cause to establish a new front in the north is also debatable. It would have had advantages, of course, but these might well be more than offset by the scattering of power, the difficulties of transport and the cost in ships and men of protecting the long line of contact with the home bases.

Finland put up one of the most magnificent defenses in the history of war since the world began. No battle saga of ancient or modern times can exceed in heroism, in sacrifice for forlorn hope, the story of the Finns and their hopeless fight with an enemy that eventually crushed them only by sheer weight of inexhaustible man power and overwhelming artillery and air supremacy.

Germany, however, gains many things by the peace.

In the first place it may enable Russia to extend much greater help to Hitler than has so far been possible. This help may include not merely supplies, but fighting power also.

The peace opens a new channel of ingress for supply into Germany, thus weakening the economic blockade the Allies are trying to use for the strangling of Germany.

It makes far more difficult any contemplated attack by the Allies through Turkey and the Balkans, by releasing Russian strength for concentration on this possible new front. It makes more difficult the evident Allied dream of cutting the enemy off from the Baku fields as a source of oil supply.

In the diplomatic field it must weaken, terribly, the already tottering confidence of European neutrals in the Allied powers. Not only in Scandinavia, but in the Balkans, the weaker, smaller nations must regard the fate of Finland as an object lesson to them. They will say, with good logic, that their own greatest safety lies in playing the game of Germany, rather than in exposing themselves to the same fate that has befallen Poland and Finland already.

It is proverbial that Britain shall lose every battle of a war save the final one. This may, again, prove the record of World War II. But no matter how much sympathy may be felt for the Allied cause, nor how much confidence there may be in the ultimate triumph of the free peoples over the despots that are Germany and Russia of today, there can be no honest reaction to the Finnish surrender other than confession that the Allies have lost a major struggle of the greater war.

Whether that loss could have been avoided or not is beside the point in the face of the accomplished fact.

Finland has been forced to her knees through the brutal, ruthless action of a gangster power. And the Allies were unable, or unwilling, to come to her rescue.

That fact remains.

In Pittsburgh an irate husband, seeking a divorce, files a 10,000-word complaint—virtually the scenario for another "Grapes of Wrath."

Timid Black Widows

That the Black Widow spider is a timid sort of insect is reassuring news for folks who have been somewhat alarmed at reports that the poisonous creature is multiplying rapidly. The truth is, while the bite of the Black Widow is dangerous, though not usually fatal, the only chance of such a bite is if you step on one of them while barefooted or otherwise allow it to touch your unprotected skin.

The Black Widow always prefers to escape to safety than to attack any human being. It has certain habits reminiscent of some human beings, including its pleasant habit of killing its own husband. However, if you see one, there is no need for fear. Just keep away from it and toss something or other at it. Madame Black Widow will promptly retreat to her own hole, there to remain, trembling, for hours.

The bite of a Black Widow is sometimes fatal and always painful. It is probably true that it kills those whose physical condition is already poor, resistance weak. Or those who do not treat the wound properly.

The one thing to do in case of a Black Widow bite is to call a doctor immediately and follow his instructions explicitly. Just as in any other case of poisonous bite from insect, reptile or what not.

There were traffic cops in ancient Rome, we are told by a popular historian. Fancy, barking at Nero, "Hey! Where's the fire?"

On Paying Taxes

Americans—those who can—are having a fairly simple time paying income taxes this year. Even those who get soaked for hidden taxes can at least thank their lucky stars they don't know it. One can almost feel that there is little gnashing of teeth in this year 1940. Hardly a joke or a cartoon has been banded about lampooning the tax collector.

For in the rest of the world, even in those countries not at war, the burden is heavy and the sacrifice is made that men may die. Or that a country may live yet awhile. In the last war, neutral nations became rich because freedom of the seas had not been snatched into the maw of the British Lion. Today neutrality is merely the privilege of paying for the tremendous cost of an army under arms, producing nothing, yet safeguarding all. More than half of national incomes go to arms. Wealth is next, to be confiscated and used for purposes that yield no return in material or human values. When it is over, all these riches that nations and men have builded over the centuries will have gone as surely as though they had been burned in the fireplace. Mars has taken the world's blank check to light his stogie. Vulcan burns the world's gold in his forge.

America is not escaping, but this year at least the vari-hued income tax blanks can be approached with a kinderlier feeling. It is not that Americans appreciate taxes more, but that they love war less. Insurance seems cheap when the house is burning.

If our youth congresses feel that youth here is not given an even break, let them try mysterious Tibet, where the office seeks the boy, aged six.

Spain and the Future

War in a vaster theater has obscured the story of a nation attempting to rebuild from the devastation of a civil conflict, so glutted with battle that there has not even been a discussion of its possible neutrality or lack of it. Spain has been liquidating war. Prisoners have been released, roads and bridges and homes are being rebuilt. Within a few years Spain outwardly will have recovered from the years of a war that was termed civil but which actually was one of Fascist powers against the people of Spain.

The greater measure of right one feels was on the side of the people, who generally win even though they may taste defeat along the paths to freedom from oppression in any form.

Today, in Spain, the great estates are being returned to their former owners, and serfdom again is cast as the lot of those who fought for their measure of security. It is quite possible that this will be for some few years, but it will be well to remember that the conditions which brought about the revolution, with the excesses that always accompany revolt, have not been, and apparently will not be, ameliorated.

Spain is on the road back from war. The path is overshadowed by the momentous events that today are shaping the Europe of the next two decades. But one may wonder what forces are building against the day when Spain again will go to the barricades.

A big day is lately reported by British on the West Front. Almost as many were killed as when a fast freight hits the school bus.

A Caney (Kansas) farmer has struck gas and oil on the south 80, and begins boring next month for the free air.

Featured in the spring hardware are garden tools with handles in pastel shades. To be used by gardeners while the lady in the big hat tells them where to dig.

MODIFY THE WAGNER ACT!

(From the Houston Post.)

After investigating the National Labor Relations Board for a month, three congressional committees have devised a series of amendments to the Wagner labor act. Such an inquiry should impress anyone deeply of the need for fundamental revisions of that law, for it is so one-sided and the functioning of the board under its terms is so biased as to render the whole thing a farce in the eyes of disinterested observers.

Both John Lewis and William Green have criticized functioning of the board, and Green has demanded changes in the board.

Labor itself, particularly the more responsible and constructive elements, would demonstrate a far-sighted wisdom by joining in the widespread demand for changes in the Wagner act itself—changes to put the employer and employee on something like an equal footing. Under its present terms, the board acts on the old Roy Bean policy of assuring the employer it will give him a fair trial and then hang him.

The operations of the labor board in considering changes against an employer are a legal travesty; the presiding trial examiner, who acts as judge and jury, is a board employee, and the prosecuting attorney is a board employee, working more or less under the trial examiner's supervision. And most of the rulings are such as would be expected from such a setup.

This program could be modified, with labor's co-operation, in such way as not to weaken its position or reverse its progress. But if it is not changed soon, the growing public revulsion may develop into such an overwhelming sentiment as to force the pendulum back to the opposite extreme.

And while they're about it, the labor leaders could win further applause and admiration from the body politic by taking the lead in a cleanup of labor's own house, by espousing effective legislation to check the spreading rackets of irresponsible labor groups who resort to violence, terrorizing and bloodshed in their factional wars and their efforts to suppress non-union enterprises.

Everyone now grants labor the right to organize, to strike and to picket peaceably. But the American spirit of fair play also will demand an even break for the other side.

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

SORDID SIDE OF POLITICS WASHINGTON, March 13.—The senate's solemn debate on the Hatch act doesn't hold a candle, in truth, humor or significance, to the corridor talk about it. These days a trip to capitol corridors, to hear the pungent explanations of the votes of the honorable and distinguished senators on both sides of the fence, is a short course in the more sordid mechanics of American politics.

Take the case of the unfortunate majority leader, Alben W. Barkley, whose flagrantly political use of the Kentucky WPA provided much of the original impetus for the Hatch act. Senator Barkley was all against the act when it was proposed to outlaw political activity by federal employees. But now that it is also proposed to make the same rule for state employees drawing part of their salaries from the federal pay roll, Barkley is beating his bosom with the best of them. Side by side with Barkley is his old enemy, former Governor Happy Chandler, who is reported to have told his colleagues:

"We've got to put this over, Alben. We don't want them to do to us what they almost did to you."

There was a certain unconscious irony in Chandler's remark, as he himself happens to have been the "they" he referred to. Of course, Barkley and Chandler are moved by the desire to climb on a noble bandwagon, but they also fear that Governor Keen Johnson or some other smart politician back home will go after their jobs with the help of the statehouse crowd, as the opponents of the act have angrily remarked when the opposition called on Barkley to permit a party caucus. Little, loquacious bombastical Josh Lee, of Oklahoma, informed him that he could no longer be considered the Democratic leader, while others taunted him with having been by his own misdeeds, the real author of the obnoxious law.

POLITICS, POLITICS! The same system of explanation serves on both sides. In fighting the Hatch act, Sherman Minton exhibits himself not as the senator from Indiana, but as the senator from the McNutt 2 per cent club machine. Scott Lucas is representing not the people of Illinois, but the exquisitely high-minded boss of Chicago, Honorable Ed Kelly. The worthy William H. Smathers, of New Jersey, is acting for the still worthier Frank Hague, of Jersey City. Every time Kenneth McKellar, of Tennessee, lets out an opposition roar, there is a note of anguish in his voice, which comes from thinking of his own immense federal patronage and of the hirelings of good Mr. Ed Crump, of Memphis.

And so it goes. Bennett Champ Clark, of Missouri, usually a strong states rights man, happens to be in a room with Missouri's Governor Lloyd Stark. He is strong for the Hatch act. The other Missouri senator, Harry Truman, an appendage of the old Pendergast machine, is strong against.

The Georgia senators, Dick Russell and Walter F. George, are also great states rightsers, but they have no very warm affection for Georgia's Governor Ed Rivers. They are voting with Hatch. Hatch's New Mexico colleague, Dennis Chavez, who once had most of his family on the WPA pay roll, is a violent anti. And Matthew Mansfield, of West Virginia, a steady patronage seeker, is against the act as it applies to federal appointees but heartily favors the new amendment, which would hurt his enemies back home in the statehouse at Charleston.

THE BIG JOKE Indeed, except for the honest enthusiasm of Carl Hatch himself, the whole history of the Hatch act is a tremendous joke. It was passed in the senate last year by unanimous consent, in response to public pressure, and in the cheerful expectation that it would be beaten in the house or vetoed by the President. It was then seized upon, however, by Vice President John N. Garner, who thought he could use it to lick the third-term movement by excluding office holders from the party convention.

Using all his tremendous influence, Garner jammed it through the house, greatly strengthening its provisions, and then got the house version approved by the senate before the opposition could do more than gasp. The President was forced to sign it, but added a slightly irritable message.

When the amendments were brought up this year, the President had to approve them since they were in line with his message. And while no one could not be less interested than Garner, the amendments have found other support, in the solid block of Republicans, for example, lined up by shrewd leader Charles L. McNary to annoy the Democrats.

All of which is no criticism of the act itself. The act is a step in the right direction, though an utterly inadequate substitute for the real civil service system the country should have. In the end, one hopes, the new amendments will pass. Meanwhile, there is no harm in enjoying the political comedy.

SILHOUETTES

By RALPH T. JONES.

We Find What We Seek.

There has been a lot said and written, of late years, about the vice and crime that is to be found in the roadside places, away from city or town corporate limits. Sociologists blame all youthful indiscretion or fall from grace upon "jerk joints," or roadside "dine and dance halls." We are led to believe that all the evil which used to be found in the more or less hidden city "districts" is now habituated to tourist camps, beer gardens and other types of establishments to be found bordering our traffic arteries in the rural areas.

Perhaps the sociologists and investigators are correct. Maybe evil has found a new welcome along the highways. Maybe youth does go astray because of the temptation found in such surroundings.

But don't you think it is rather rough on the reputable establishments along the roads which must, after all, be in the vast majority? It is somewhat like branding goods because of the lawlessness found a still hidden in the attic of one house.

Without the good eating places, the establishments where you can stop for jawful liquid refreshment and spend my lunch time, you can find home for a night, automobile touring wouldn't be one-fourth as attractive or convenient as it is.

My Own Idea.

I'm inclined to believe that, if you are an investigator looking for vice in roadside spots, you'll find it. In fact, he who seeks it will generally find it, wherever he goes.

But, on the other hand, if you are a good citizen, thoughtful of outlawed activities never enter your mind, you'll find nothing but decency and respectability.

In other words, you'll generally find conditions to suit your own temperament, desires or inclinations.

I know, as a matter of fact, that we of the Jones family have patronized many roadside business establishments and we haven't been conscious of the fact we were in a den of vice, at any time.

We have stayed at a number of tourist cabin places in Florida, for instance, and all we've yet found was clean, comfortable, undisturbed accommodations. Sometimes it has been remarkably low in cost and, sometimes, just about as expensive as a first-class hotel.

We've stopped, innumerable times, for bottles of that stuff that refreshes, and we've yet to find any leering suggestions or invitations to partake of anything stronger. In fact, we've invariably found kindly courtesy and as fine service as the conditions permit.

We've had lunch, lots of times, sitting at tables or counters with the roar of the open road just a few feet away. And, generally speaking, the food has been palatable, the service efficient and the surroundings decent.

That Afternoon Traveling North.

About a couple of years ago I was en route, alone in the car, to New York. For many miles I had traveled a good, but lonely road. There seemed to be no roadside place where I could find a midday snack.

At last, about 1:30 o'clock, came across a place, in a wooded stretch of scenery. A little building with dining room at one side. Tables in booths along the wall and central space, presumably, left free for dancing. Saw four people and anybody would guess they were father (behind store counter), mother (cooking in kitchen), daughter (waitress), and son (sweeping the front yard).

Served me good coffee and tempting sandwich, apple pie and cheese. I was there half an hour, didn't see another customer. Place was clean and attractive. But I wondered to this day where they found customers to make it profitable. Didn't seem to be a human habitation within 20 miles.

Then there was that other place, in Pennsylvania. With the dumpy little woman in charge. After she'd served my lunch, she glimpsed the Georgia tag on my car and spent my lunch time in voicing a lifelong yearning she had to "go south."

She had one of those cotton-field, magnolia, jasmine and all-ways sunny pictures of the south and I didn't disabuse her at all, at all.

There may be awfully wicked places along the highways. Maybe, in fact, I've been in 'em. But if so, I didn't know it and they can't prove a thing by me.

I guess, after all, you find what you seek, whether it be coffee and sandwich, bottled drink, gasoline and oil or a regular orgy of dissipation.

By the way, if you want the best coffee and food by the roadside, watch where the big trucks stop. The drivers know.

Twenty-five Years Ago Today.

From the news columns of Sunday, March 14, 1915:

"LONDON, March 13.—The admiralty announced today that since the 10th of March seven British merchant steamers had been torpedoed by submarines."

And Fifty Years Ago.

From the news columns of Friday, March 14, 1890:

"C. H. Ridley yesterday bought of Mr. Ed. S. Gay for $15,000 a lot on Peachtree street, at the corner of Pine, 95x340, running through to Courtland avenue."

Travel Travail

The world tour, by bicycle, of Joplin's (Mo.) George Guckert has run afoul of war. Friends have learned he detoured to the Isle of Capri and was arrested three times on suspicion of being a spy. Which may, or may not, explain why he has a new beard.

Congress and The Army

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 13.—There is a smell in the Washington air of something like a complete disembowelment of the army defense program by a congressional refusal to provide funds to carry it out.

The navy will get by partly because the President regards himself as a navy man and doesn't pay much attention to the army, and partly because Jimmy Byrnes is in charge of the navy's needs in the senate and is man enough to see that they don't go by default.

But the army has never been any too adept at handling congressional committees. Its topside isn't altogether out of the doghouse with the administration and with congress and it hasn't any outstanding congressional champion to present and insist upon its case. Even the presentation of the case to the country has been bad. There have been too many administration Pollyanna speeches assuring us that the army is completely satisfactory in its modernization program and that there is nothing to fear.

The fact is that it isn't coming along at more than a snail's pace and that if the Casper Milquetoast requests it has made for money to make it come a little faster are slashed, it could be a major catastrophe.

Streamlined Divisions

It is reorganizing in modern streamlined divisions to be entirely motorized with new rapid-fire equipment and with many of the men behind steel shields. The war in Europe is proving that, with this kind of organization and equipment, far fewer men are needed, those who are used are much better protected from death or injury, and the great speed, range and mobility will enable a few men to defend a far greater area than was ever before thought possible.

This is a vital consideration in our military problem. Our principal danger is swift and unexpected raids. From an expense angle alone, we could not defend our vast stretches of coast and territory by fixed or slow forces. We couldn't do it with what we have. We can only be sure of doing it by what we propose to get. One other problem is to be able by an expeditionary force to repel or break up any hostile lodgment in Latin America. In view of the argument of other countries, both of these problems absolutely require such an army as I have described. Until we get it, our defenses will be woefully weak. We don't need a big army, but we need a small one that can move fast and hit hard over the widest area than any nation has to defend.

Now you can't do a half-way job of this. A motorized army has to be motorized all the way. It is tied to the speed of its slowest unit. It is an integrated whole and if part of it isn't high speed, the rest of it might as well not be. Furthermore, if you streamline your divisions on the theory that you will make up for the loss of men by armor and automatic weapons of vastly increased power and then don't provide the weapons, you have cut your defensive power in half—or worse.

No Usable Army Now

That we are making exactly this mistake right now even with the program as it is. If the appropriations are cut, I am absolutely certain that we shall make it.

It is not an exaggeration to say that we have no usable army now. With the world at its most dangerous worst, we may be caught changing our clothes and so—very literally—with our pants down.

I don't like the air of secrecy that covers hearings of our military committees. They do not make sense. Foreign nations know all about this condition. The people who have the best right to know about it—precisely and exactly—are the people of the United States. They know precious little and what they know is largely wrong. Perhaps if they knew more, we might get some action.

Walla Walla Felines

Mouse-catchers at the Washington state prison at Walla Walla, Wash., can trace their lineage straight back for 50 to 75 generations.

Prison officials say that for more than 50 years the cats with the walls never have seen nor mated with a feline outsider. There are about 50 in the prison now.

Their forebears colonized the prison in 1887. The warden had issued an appeal for a good mouster. He received 23 sacks of them.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH MCGILL.

OH, SAY CAN YOU SEE— Finland is defeated. An "honorable peace" has all but disintegrated the nation. It is a dying nation after another, and worse, "Munich."

The stubborn, courageous Finns who, with a population no more than that of Georgia held out for three months against millions of men and resources, have died in vain.

They fought for freedom liberty and democracy.

I am wondering, now the war of the north is done, if there are any left who have any illusions about this war in Europe?

Can there be those who truly believe it to be a war which had its origins in a clash between the idealogues, democracy and totalitarianism?

Are there those who believe we have a duty in this war because we are a democracy?

Finland was a democracy. One of the best.

Not until talk of a peace was imminent did the major democracies of Europe offer any help. It was then so patently only an effort to keep the Finns fighting no one was deceived. After offering help the Chamberlain government was careful to say there had been no official request for help.

When one of the finest and most courageous of the democracies was dying, there was no talk then by the brass hats of England and France of a fight for "democracy." The man in the street talked it. But not the governments.

This never has been, per se, a war for democracy. It isn't now. It isn't even a war against Hitlerism. Hitlerism was all right in Austria, in the Sudeten territories of Czechoslovakia, and then in Czechoslovakia itself.

It was not until the war in Poland, and the extension of the economic control to the Danube and toward the Balkans generally, that "Hitlerism" became something for the Allies to fight. It is a war for world trade and territory.

That ought to be very clear in the dawn's early light. With Finland dying.

ANOTHER GERMAN VICTORY

Hitler and Hitlerism are a real menace to most everything that is decent and honorable in government and individuals.

This war, no matter who wins it, is going to be a very real tragedy to the entire world. It will be worse if Hitlerism wins.

But this war did not grow out of a clash with Hitlerism. Hitlerism was fostered in Austria. That was all right. Hitlerism was assisted to take Meinel and the Sudeten territories. Hitlerism then took all Czechoslovakia, and that, too, while regrettable, was all right with the Allies.

Now Hitler has assisted Russia to take Finland. Because, Finland is gone. The Finns are left exactly as was Czechoslovakia. We will have, within a few weeks or months, an "affront" by the Finns. Russia will absorb the entire nation. Not a big job. It is a small nation.

It is another diplomatic triumph over the Chamberlain government, shaken by the German victories in the field and by the maneuvering of Russia and Germany into the now famous mutual assistance trade pact.

THE ALLIED "GUARANTEES"

What hope have the small nations which wished to avoid the German threat?

None at all. Once the Sudeten territory was taken, the borders of Czechoslovakia were guaranteed. Poland was guaranteed. Finland believed she would have help. She got none. Finland was deceived. Cruelly. Of the lot, Finland was the only real democracy.

How does Rumania feel about her guarantee? What will Holland and Switzerland do, for instance, if Germany makes demands? Give in or seek a "guarantee" from the Allies?

What about Norway and Sweden? And Denmark? Germany is going to make demands of them. This means increased supplies for Germany from Scandinavia. They can't trust the Allies.

Let's be realistic. Not sentimental.

SUGGESTS VALUABLE QUESTION FOR CENSUS

Editor Constitution: If, instead of asking us a lot of personal questions which cannot possibly do anybody any good, and only irritate us, the 16th census would question us along the line suggested below, I believe it would assemble some data which would enable us to cut the expense of government nearly in half.

Talking recently with a group of businessmen we discovered that with the exception of the reports of the Weather Bureau, none of us ever looks into a statistical or "fact-finding" government report from one year's end to another. In my attic I have an old Indian Bureau report of 1890 with some interesting pictures in it, and I also have some geodetic survey maps—and this is about typical of the others of this group. Our hunch is that we are spending billions supporting government bureaus whose work is of so little value that the public never sees it and seldom uses it.

Why not make inquiry of each person interviewed as to what government bureau he finds useful, interesting or valuable. The results would be extremely enlightening.

STUDENTS TO FORM PRESBYTERIAN BODY

Session Will Be Held at Agnes Scott This Week End.

Presbyterian students from Georgia colleges and universities will meet at Agnes Scott Saturday and Sunday to organize a denominational association for the synod of Georgia.

The program, which will include addresses and discussion groups, will present as leaders and speakers Dr. W. M. Elliott, Atlanta; Dr. J. R. McCain, president of Agnes Scott; the Rev. Harold McQu. Shields, Atlanta; the Rev. John D. Melton, Rome, and the Rev. James Appleby, Anderson, S. C.

Others on the program are the Rev. J. M. Carr, Mrs. J. O. Sallee, Miss Margaret Friend, Miss Eleanor Belk, Miss Mary Louise McGowan, and the Rev. M. O. Summers.

Students will attend from Agnes Scott, Armstrong College, Columbia Seminary, Emory University, Georgia Military Academy, Georgia Military College, Georgia Tech, Georgia State College for Women, Georgia Teachers' College, LaGrange, North Georgia College, Piedmont College, Rabun Gap, Shorter and Wesleyan.

The organization will be known as the Presbyterian Student Association of the Synod of Georgia.

TWO MAKE BONDS IN MURDER CASE

'Witnesses' in Double Slaying Are Released.

C. N. Voyles and Joel Griffith, who have been detained by DeKalb county police since March 6 as material witnesses in the "lovers' lane" killing near McDonough, yesterday were released under $100 bonds.

Both men were taken into custody by Chief J. T. Dailey, who is assisting Henry county officials in the investigation, and were served with warrants after police said they told divergent stories concerning their activities the night of the slaying.

Voyles is a resident of Stockbridge, near the lonely road where Sara Rawls and Benton Ford were killed two weeks ago. Griffith lives in Atlanta at a Central avenue address.

Good Morning

By LOUIE D. NEWTON.

Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick, in a recent radio address, on Conscience and Liberty, said: "Democracy cannot be merely inherited. It must be reborn with every generation. Unless the inner spiritual factors that created democracy in the first place can be constantly renewed, its outward forms decay."

He then asked the very pertinent question, "What kind of religion ought ours to be if it is to support a government of, by, and for the people?" And his answer: "In the first place, obviously it must be a religion that dignifies personality. Second, it must be a religion that recognizes a higher loyalty than the state. We must obey God rather than men. In the third place, the kind of religion that will support the democratic faith and practice must genuinely care not only for liberty but for the equality and fraternity of the people. Finally, the kind of religion that will support government of, by, and for the people must create responsible character in the individual citizens. Whatever else Christianity at its best has done, it has produced self-starting, self-motivating, self-driving character. And you who have been careless of religion, negligent of the church, thoughtless of Christ, but who do care about government of, by, and for the people, have we not a right to appeal to you to rethink your attitude?"

In a day when totalitarianism threatens democracy in every portion of the world, we may well ponder the thoughtful words of Dr. Fosdick. I believe that the whole question goes back to the home, for well we may remember that it was in the Christian homes of our own land that democracy was taught, and from these God-fearing homes went forth men and women imbued with the doctrines of freedom and liberty which have made possible a nation of strong men and women. Such homes will mean the right sort of churches, the right sort of schools, the right sort of government, the right sort of business. Given a home where the Bible is the rule and guide for faith and practice, a home where truly religious parents bind their children to the throne of God in daily prayer, a home in which personality is revered, where God is honored, whose democratic ideals respecting the rights of others are taught and practiced, a home where emphasis is laid upon individual character, and you will have a sure and unwavering foundation for true democracy.

I hardly need to add that the only basis for a Christian home is personal belief in the Lord Jesus Christ. Said Jesus: "Ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free."

COUNCILMEN URGE $9,000,000 PLAN

Committee Will Seek Municipal Approval of Big Development.

City council will be asked to approve a $9,000,000 public improvement program for Atlanta, which would be carried out over a period of three years, it was announced yesterday following a conference between Robert L. MacDougall, Georgia WPA administrator, and a special council committee to expedite WPA improvements for the municipality. Councilman John A. White, chairman of the council group, said Aldermen G. Dan Bridges and Raleigh Drennon, other members of the committee, had agreed that the best way to obtain maximum benefits from federal funds is to develop a definite and systematized public improvement program.

A survey of a $3,000,000-a-year program will be completed in time for submission to April 1 meeting of council, at which time that body is to be asked to approve the recommendations of the committee.

Another move seeks the support of Senators George and Russell and the state's 10 congressmen for a proposal to eliminate WPA rules requiring that sponsors provide at least 25 per cent of project costs. It was pointed out that many local governments are unable to sponsor such improvements because of their inability to provide the sponsor's contributions.

'FARLEY' LUNCH DATE WAS PRACTICAL JOKE

WAUKEGAN, Ill., March 13.—(AP)—Postmaster Joseph Farley and Restaurant Owner Harry Kilbane are still friends—even though Jim Farley didn't come to lunch.

Kilbane didn't spare the horses after Daly phone that he was bringing Postmaster General Farley and four others to eat. He scrubbed the back room. He bought a new table. He borrowed fine silverware and installed a radio. But when Daly and five companions showed up, Farley wasn't among those present. Instead, the six spread their own meal on the new table, ate, left a four-cent tip, and departed.

Hoover Says Relief Still Is Problem; More Funds Needed.

Funds for Finland must still be raised, to meet the additional emergencies of the civilian population, Herbert Hoover, director of the national Finnish relief fund drive, said yesterday in a telegram to Preston S. Arkwright and Ryburn G. Clay, co-chairmen of the Georgia drive.

"The terms imposed upon Finland make another sad day for civilization. The Finns have made a heroic defense that will live for all time. But the odds were insuperable.

"The Finnish relief fund must continue for the present to meet the civilian emergencies for which it was created. There will be thousands more of Finnish refugees from the Russian acquired territory for whom new homes must be found.

"Homes destroyed by air attacks in every town and city must be rebuilt. There are many destitute who must be carried over until normal life can be re-established. I hope the fund will continue to receive the united support of the American people as in the past. We ought to give this encouragement to the Finnish people in this time of trial.

"I feel deeply that we should keep open the channels by which our people can contribute if they wish."

British Snub Spalding's Pal In an Affected Oxford Accent

Salinas was a nice, dry desert and people went there to avoid the rainy season. Came Jack Spalding and it rained. Rain made the ants and bugs active, and what's worse, kept the hotel inmates indoors so a little spychasing was in order.

By JACK SPALDING.
Staff Correspondent.

SALINAS, Ecuador, Wednesday, Feb. 28.—(By Mail)—"Everything I touch turns to dust," Charlie growled from the depths of a beach chair he had nailed out of the rain into the hotel dining pavilion.

The English cargo ship had weighed anchor, and much to Charlie's regret, was swinging out of sight around the point. She was a grimy, dirty looking vessel with her stercor and superstructure camouflaged with black and gray paint.

"With any luck a pocket battleship or submarine would have turned up and sent that ship to the bottom. Then I would have had a story. Furthermore, after the Englishmen I have met in South America, I would have enjoyed the sinking immensely."

English Veddly Uppish.

Charlie shuddered at the memory of Englishmen he had known and what they said about America and Americans.

"The United States? Really, old boy, you overestimate yourselves. You're not even a nation yet, you know," he recited in a fairly good imitation of the kind of imitation Oxford accent affected by Britishers in these parts.

"If more Americans knew more Englishmen, we'd be sending arms to Germany," he said, remembering the British vice consul who wasted an hour explaining what a negligible part the United States played in the last war, and why the war debt should be cancelled. "But the unki, deest cut of all," Charlie continued, "came when the little so and so got up to leave. He shook my hand, looked me over and said, 'Yours must be a most interesting country. We often wonder what type of race will be evolved there.'"

Hopes for U-Boat.

For three days Charlie had been watching the British ship riding at anchor, meanwhile casting hopeful glances at the horizon. He wasn't the only one. Another guest at the hotel sat on the beach by day looking at the ship through field glasses. At night he sat on the terrace with a flashlight in his lap. Occasionally he would shine it on the sailboats and the launches tied to buoys beyond the surf.

Monday night Charlie believed the end of the British ship had come. And that he would be witness to a flagrant violation of the American safety zone. After dinner the man with the flashlight strolled up the beach with Charlie not far behind. Soon a faint light appeared on the horizon.

Signals, Pal. Signals.

On came the flashlight. The man made half an arc with it. Then a full circle. Then there were two lights on the horizon, close together. One burned steadily. The other blinked three times. The man with the flashlight described a full circle, a half circle, and a full circle again. The lights on the horizon went out. The man turned and started back to the hotel and saw Charlie standing there, his mouth hanging open. "Good evening," he said amiably. "Good evening," Charlie replied. "It's a beautiful evening, isn't it?" The man walked on without another word. Charlie settled down in a beach chair to await developments. He sat there all night. Nothing happened.

"Nothing ever happens," he groaned. "That is, to me. Other newspapermen come down here and find Japanese flying fields and German navy yards. Or so they say. All I see are old churches, rice and potato fields and fishing villages.

"And," he said sadly, like one reluctantly surrendering his last illusion, "I think I'm the one that's right. I think the rice fields are rice fields and not Japanese air bases. And if the German navy has any use for that," he pointed to the end of Salinas, where fishing schooners were anchored before bamboo and thatched huts, "they can have it. And I'm positive the gent with the flashlight put on an act for my benefit."

SPARTA ISHMAELITE ENTERS ITS 63D YEAR

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.
SPARTA, Ga., March 13.—The Sparta Ishmaelite, oldest business enterprise in Sparta, marked its sixty-second anniversary this week.

The Ishmaelite, established March 12, 1878, prides itself on being all "home print." Never during its long career has it used so-called "ready print" in a single issue.

At Party for Ernest Brewer

Yes, they're teachers. This trio of young and attractive Atlanta "school mams" are shown as they listed tea cups at a party given yesterday at Joe Brown Junior High school in honor of Ernest Brewer, who resigned as a member of the board of education to accept a place on the staff of Solicitor General John A. Boykin. Shown, left to right, are Misses Jewel Dodd, of the Joe Brown faculty; Ruth Smith, of Adair, and Louise Bloodworth, also of Joe Brown. Brewer said he couldn't "make the grade against so much beauty" and didn't pose for the shot.

GARRETT NOMINATED JEFF DAVIS ORDINARY

HALEHURST, Ga., March 13.—(P)—Official votes in a Jeff Davis county primary yesterday returned all incumbents to office for another four years, except the ordinary.

For ordinary G. D. Garrett, merchant, defeated W. F. Hinson by 27 votes, with Robert Harrison, former ordinary, third. Garrett had 710, W. F. Hinson 683 and Robert Harrison 273.

Sheriff George Hesters, Tax

Commissioner Joe Ellis, and County School Superintendent George N. Yarbrough defeated opponents. R. M. Graham, clerk of superior court; Jesse Thomas, coroner, and Earl E. Singletary, surveyor, were unopposed.

NAMED CITY ATTORNEY.

VIDALIA, Ga., March 13.—George M. Langford, who retired March 1 as mayor of Lyons, has been named by the new council as city attorney. He is a son of Judge George W. Langford, of city court of Lyons.

STATE CAN CONTROL LYNCHING--RIVERS

Sees 'No Possible Advantage' in Interference by the U. S.

Georgia is amply able to cope with the lynching situation without assistance of any federal agency, Governor Rivers yesterday wrote the senate anti-lynching bill committee. In a letter to Senator Kenneth McKellar, the Governor said there was "no possible advantage" to be gained from interference by the federal government in suppressing lynching. "I am firmly convinced that this question can only be solved successfully by local governmental agencies," the Governor said. "I cannot conceive of any federal agency that could be set up by the federal government which would so successfully cope with the situation as it has been proven that we have in Georgia."

He praised sheriffs and other law enforcement officers for their record in preventing lynchings and cited numerous instances in which the officers dispersed enraged crowds.

TO ENFORCE STOP LAW.
ALBANY, Ga., March 13.—(P) Police Chief Jim Moore has warned motorists a new city ordinance requiring cars of come to a full stop before turning right on a red light will be enforced. Also, the chief added, parking regulations relaxed during the tornado emergency period will be put into effect again and cases made against violators.

SENATE BODY VOTES ANTI-LYNCHING BILL

Proponents Will Seek To Curtail Debate on the Legislation.

WASHINGTON, March 13.—(P) Proponents of anti-lynching legislation announced today they would seek to invoke the senate's drastic, seldom-used cloture rule to curtail debate if the legislation encounters a southern filibuster. A house-approved bill, imposing criminal penalties on peace officers who fail to use diligence in protecting prisoners and making political subdivisions liable for civil damages where lynchings occur because of official negligence, received the approval of a judiciary subcommittee, 5 to 1, during the day.

Chairman Van Nuys, Democrat, Indiana, of the subcommittee forecast favorable action by the full committee within two weeks and asserted that the bill would have the support of at least 65 senators if brought to a vote.

HOMERVILLE GROUP GRANTED REA FUNDS

WASHINGTON, March 13.—(P) The Slapshpine Electric Membership Corporation of Homerville, Ga., has been allotted $161,000 to build 168 miles of line for 549 members in five counties, the Rural Electrification Administration announced yesterday. The corporation is to serve electricity to Clinch, Lanier, Atkinson, Berrien and Ware counties.

AMERICUS PLANS BLUE LAW DRIVE

Will Bar Sale of Sunday 'Commodities.'

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.
AMERICUS, Ga., March 13.—Enforcement of certain "blue laws," both city and state, will begin here Sunday, Chief of Police Worthy warned today. Merchants suspected of making illegal sales of any commodity on the Sabbath have been warned that cases will be made in the future, the chief said.

The officer defined "commodities" as "beer, wine, meat or flour, or any other commodity." Cases will be made wherever the law is not obeyed, Worthy said, provided the merchant is doing business within the city limits.

Whether the Sunday laws will be enforced outside the city, a matter for county officials, could not be learned today.

CASTELLOW SPEAKS.
AMERICUS, Ga., March 13.—Bryant T. ## Curtis String Quartet Delights Large Crowd at Concert Here

Superb Artistry Displayed in Final Performance of Season.

By MOZELLE HORTON YOUNG.

The Curtis String Quartet is positive proof that by living constantly together and practicing together the year round with their one aim the perfection of the ensemble, a remarkable unity can be achieved.

Jascha Brodsky, violinist, Charles Jaffe, violinist, Max Aronoff, violinist, Orlando Cole, cellist, have four houses on the same street in Philadelphia when not on tour in the winter, and spend their summers at the same Maine resort rehearsing.

Their concert at the Atlanta Woman's Club auditorium last night, which was the final concert of the Atlanta Music Club's season series of "imported" artists, more than pleased a large crowd of chamber music enthusiasts which almost filled the auditorium to capacity.

This quartet is as near perfect in ensemble and tonal balance as four men could be, I believe. A rigid test of their experience of synchronization, as well as bow-control and other technical difficulties, was the modern "Concert Etude," by the contemporary Italian composer, Sinigaglia, which received its first Atlanta performance. This work was so enthusiastically received—and as much for the superb ensemble of the players as for the attractiveness of the composition—that it had to be repeated.

The highlight of the program, however, was by a wide margin, the Dohnanyi "Quartet in D flat major, Opus 15." The work gave ample opportunity for warmth and emotion and great beauty of tone, and it was freely given by these artists. The superb artistry of this performance and the depth it reached in the listeners' hearts made it one of the memorable chamber music performances for Atlanta.

The quartet opened its program with the Beethoven "Quartet, Opus 18, No. 5," which was given a finished classic interpretation, with the third movement, the "Andante con variazioni," taking the honors.

Responding to the ovation at the close of the program the quartet played two encores, "Invocation of the Bull-Fighter," by the contemporary Spanish composer, Turina, and the finale of a quartet by Dittersdorf, a contemporary of Mozart.

EARL LONG RUSHES TRIBUTE TO HUEY

$50,000 Monument To Be Placed on Top of 'Kingfish's' Tomb.

BATON ROUGE, La., March 13. (P)—Lest Louisiana forget its slain dictator, Huey Long, the heirs to his smashed political machine are hustling through plans for preserving his memory for posterity.

Huey's brother, Governor Earl K. Long, repudiated in the recent state elections in his race for a full term as chief executive, and other members of the Long family are drawing on memorial funds which have lain idle since authorized by the 1938 legislature.

A life-sized monument of the late Senator Long has been completed by a New York sculptor, Charles Keck, and is being shipped to Louisiana's capitol.

Russell Long, son of the "Kingfish" and a member of the commission handling the monument's erection, said it would be set in place atop his father's tomb in the shadow of the 33-story skyscraper statehouse. A dedication is planned in April.

Russell, who bears a striking resemblance to his father, is pushing for Keck in executing the memorial.

The legislature appropriated $50,000 for the monument over the tomb, $40,000 of which has been drawn to date, and also appropriated $15,000 for another statue to grace the national statutory hall at Washington.

Only a few days ago Governor Long approved the first payment from the $15,000 fund, a sum of $1,500 for work Keck already has done on the statue destined for Washington.

Sally Saver's Cooking School Is Slated in Calhoun Tomorrow

Springtime, Holiday Dishes To Be Featured in Demonstration.

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

CALHOUN, Ga., March 13.—Sally Saver, foods editor of The Constitution, will be in Calhoun at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon at the Calhoun Woman's Club to conduct an informal cooking class.

Miss Saver will give a lecture-demonstration, discussing ingredients, menus, recipes, and utensils, while she cooks and prepares a varied menu designed for springtime, Saint Patrick's Day, and Easter.

For easy, economical meals, Miss Saver will offer an oven meal, cooked simultaneously, consisting of baked stuffed pork chops, string beans, and candied sweet potatoes. A delicious fruit marlow will be prepared and is included as a dessert for the oven-meal.

Bright springtime salads will be prepared by Miss Saver. She will fix a spiced bean salad; a party salad of diced chicken, blanched almonds, and diced pineapple, molded in mayonnaise, and an Erin salad, with decorative cucumber boats stuffed with cucumber centers, diced celery and pineapple.

A lusty dish of real Italian spaghetti, hearty meal in itself, will be cooked, and Miss Saver will offer suggestions on how it should be served and what complimentary dishes may be served with it.

For entrees, Miss Saver has planned two variations of ham dishes and crooked fish flakes in sea shells. The broiled ham slice will be served with a tasty raisin-grape sauce, and the baked half ham, garnished with fruits, is designed as a delicious and decorative dish for Easter.

And for a light dessert, suitable for serving with all three entrees, Miss Saver will prepare a mint sherbet, which makes a festive green dessert for Saint Patrick's Day.

The class is sponsored by The Constitution and the Women's Auxiliary of the Calhoun Methodist church. Mrs. John Littlefield, of Calhoun, is in charge of arrangements.

Miss Saver will work in a well-equipped kitchen set up in the club house. The class will give readers an opportunity to discuss their food problems from buying to serving. Miss Saver, who is a foods expert, also will offer suggestions for the use of ingredients which have been donated by local merchants and will be given away.

JONES COUNTY PLANS RUNOVER ELECTIONS

GRAY, Ga., March 13.—(P)—Sheriff J. P. Hawkins and School Superintendent W. E. Knox were renominated in Jones county's heated primary yesterday. Hawkins received 1,098 votes and Ralph Lowe 256. Knox defeated Ralph Chiles, 701 to 556.

J. A. Burnett, Willis T. Middlebrooks and T. A. White were chosen county commissioners. Run-over elections will be held between J. Lewis Ethridge and T. H. Trice for tax collector, and between Mrs. Giles Bonner and Claude Bryant for tax receiver.

RINGGOLD CHILD, 5, IS KILLED BY TRAIN

RINGGOLD, Ga., March 13.—(P)—Alice Self, 5, was struck and killed by a passenger train today as she ran from her home to greet a sister returning from school.

The child was the daughter of Henry Self, employed in the maintenance department of the L. & N. railroad.

G. P. FARABEE, 75, EX-MERCHANT, DIES

Former Real Estate Man Had Taught School in Georgia.

Girard Dupont Farabee, 75, retired merchant and real estate man, died yesterday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. F. A. Jordan, 564 Ridgeway road.

For many years he taught school in north Georgia and north Alabama before entering the mercantile business in Anniston, Ala., after marrying the former Miss Sarah E. Hamilton, of Calhoun county, Alabama. Later he farmed in Calhoun county and then entered the real estate business here.

A native of Commerce, Ga., he was born during the days the town was known as Harmony Grove. Mr. Farabee was the son of the Rev. and Mrs. Jesse A. Farabee, a Methodist minister who served pastors in Flowering Branch, Commerce, Jackson and Hall counties. He was one of 11 children.

Surviving in addition to his daughter, Mrs. Jordan, are another daughter, Miss Ethel Farabee, of Wichita Falls, Tex.; a son, Joseph R. Farabee, of Wichita Falls, Tex.; a sister, Mrs. Lula Jones, of Ragland, Ala.; and three brothers, O. M. Farabee, of Alton, Ala.; N. W. Farabee, of Murray Cross, Ala.; and Jordan Farabee, of Newcastle, Tex.

Funeral arrangements will be announced by H. M. Patterson & Son.

Harvard's Lads Steal the Show In Glamor Battle

BOSTON, March 13.—(P)—Boston's long heralded "battle of glamor" between teams of professional and debutante models collapsed with a dull thud tonight as a post-time entry from Harvard's Hasty Pudding Club stole the laurels.

The decision of the judges' committee, headed by Cartoonist Peter Arno, a Yale man, drew a chorus of protest from debbie ranks. But there were no remarks from the professional team, substitute for a unit headed by Miss Ruth Allen, who issued the original challenge to the debbs.

Miss Allen, who withdrew her girls after claiming the judges' committee was being "packed" in favor of the debbs, had threatened to picket the downtown hotel where the carnival was held for the benefit of Polish relief.

She abandoned the plan tonight, explaining:

"It was too cold."

AUTO THEFT SUSPECT SLAIN IN TENNESSEE

ETOWAH, Tenn., March 13.—(P)—A man accused by Chattanooga police of stealing, one after the other, a truck loaded with beer, a motorcycle, a county police car and two privately owned automobiles, was shot fatally this afternoon in a gun battle with Etowah police.

He was taken to the Etowah hospital where he identified himself as Charles Oliver, 36, of Wilkesburg, Pa. He died within a few hours of bullet wounds inflicted by a squad of city and county officers with whom he exchanged shots after they attempted to arrest him at a filling station.

MUSICA'S BROTHER TELLS OF FRAUD

Testifies Former Officer Helped Juggle Books.

NEW YORK, March 13.—(P)—George Dietrich—Musica, 46, brother of the late president of the $87,000,000 McKesson and Robbins Drug Company, testified in federal court today that John H. McCloon, of Bridgeport, Conn., former vice president of the drug firm, supervised a system of false schedules in inflating the company's books.

Dietrich said his brother, F. Donald Coster-Musica, resorted to a series of fraudulent manipulations in an effort to bolster the drug company's financial status, including fictitious sales and purchases in the crude drug department, dummy firms and even a fake bank in Canada known as "Manning and Company."

GOVERNOR ORDERS OKLAHOMA DAM WORK STOPPED

OKLAHOMA CITY, March 13. (P)—Governor Leon C. Phillips today declared martial law at a section of the giant Grand river dam and ordered national guardsmen to bring work to a halt on the $20,000,000 hydro-electric project.

The Governor said 100 national guardsmen mobilized earlier in the day and held in readiness at Waggoner had been ordered to proceed to the damsite in Mayes county, northeastern Oklahoma. He seeks to block completion of the dam pending guarantees that the federal government will pay the state for damages to roads and bridges.

The guardsmen were armed with machine guns and tear gas bombs in addition to regulation rifles and sidearms.

Adjutant General Louis A. Ledbetter said no trouble was anticipated.

General Manager T. P. Clonts and other dam officials said resisting the guardsmen was farthest from their minds.

In Washington, Clark Foreman, head of the PWA power division, hinted court action might be forthcoming.

Phillips, who seeks $850,000 damages for the state, retorted that court action would not prevail against his use of troops.

CHANGES IN STYLES AMAZE PRISONER

Slayer of Father To Stand Trial After 26 Years in Prison.

NEW YORK, March 13. (P)—A white-haired, slightly bearded old man stepped out of the dusk at Grand Central terminal today into the sunshine and up-roar of 42nd street. Chester B. Duryea, who slew his father in 1914, was back after 26 years to stand trial for murder.

He had been released from Matteawan State hospital for the insane by order of Supreme Court Justice Lee Parsons Davis who ruled last Saturday that Duryea, now 69, was mentally sound enough to stand trial.

Duryea, who was in the custody of Sheriff James V. Mangano, of Kings county, was asked what was the biggest change he could notice since he was taken away from normal life more than a quarter century ago.

"I should say it was the women's clothing," he said. "They've changed a lot since 1914. They surprise me very much."

He stared curiously at women who were passing.

"And the buildings, too. Well, they are about the same except they are bigger and newer."

"The automobiles are a lot different, too. And there seem to be more of them."

Duryea shot his aged father, Brigadier General Hiram Duryea, to death in May, 1914. When police arrived at their Brooklyn home he was babbling about "doing it on orders from Washington."

He began his fight for freedom several months ago, arguing through his counsel, James D. C. Murray, that he had recovered his reason.

Pending disposition of the murder charge he will be held in the Raymond street jail, Brooklyn.

THIRD WARD FORMS NEW CIVIC GROUP

The next meeting of the club will be held Tuesday night, March 26, at the Lula Kingsbery school.

VERDICT IS GIVEN IN COPELAND DEATH

A verdict of suicide was returned by a coroner's jury yesterday in the death of Malcom J. Copeland, 39, a filling station operator, whose body was found Tuesday night in a car parked near the federal penitentiary. He had been shot in the head.

Surviving are his wife; two sons, Billy and Malcom Howell Copeland; his mother, Mrs. A. L. Copeland; two brothers, Robert and Elton Copeland; and a sister, Mrs. Bob Taylor. Funeral arrangements will be announced by J. Austin Dillon.

PENSIONER REFUSES RAISE IN ALLOWANCE

DES MOINES, Iowa, March 13. (P)—Iowa social welfare officials believe this one sets a new high for civic responsibility.

The aged assistance system entitled one pensioner to $3 a month more than he had been receiving, but he turned it down. He explained he had managed to live on the smaller amount all right, adding that there "undoubtedly are other persons in the state who need it as badly as I do."

ESTATE OF HOPKINS HELD TAXABLE HERE

Supreme Court Gives Fulton Right To Levy on Intangibles.

Fulton county tax assessors yesterday obtained a ruling from the Georgia supreme court which gave them the right to seek collection of intangible taxes from the estate of the late Lindsey Hopkins, former Atlanta capitalist.

The court held that tax arbitrators appointed in the case exceeded their authority in attempting to rule on the collectibility of the taxes.

The Fulton county assessors first sued Hopkins for taxes on $1,000,000 worth of stocks and bonds he owned in 1931, $500,000 for each of the years 1932-1935, $2,000,000 in 1936, and $2,500,000 in 1937.

Later, however, the petition was amended, saying Hopkins owned four times the amount of stock on which their suit had been instituted originally.

The arbitrators declared that Hopkins was not a resident of Fulton county during the years from 1930 to 1937, but was a legal resident of Dade county, Florida, and concluded that the stocks and bonds had no taxable status in Fulton.

The supreme court held that "arbitrators are not vested with authority to determine the question of taxability, but are limited to a review and determination of values respecting the property assessed for taxation. It follows that the arbitrators in the present case failed to perform their duties prescribed by law, and that the court erred in refusing the mandamus." (The tax assessors sought a mandamus.)

Arbitrators in the case were James A. Branch, Frank Carter and John M. Slaton.

DRIVER IS JAILED ON HIT-RUN CHARGE

Gave Dollar to Victim and Fled, Police Say.

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION. ROME, Ga., March 13.—A "one-man five-piece band" was wrecked and the operator, Fayette Norris, 50, of Trion, was injured when an auto struck him from the rear. Policemen Johnson and Peck reported today.

A man listed by Deputy John Adams as John Owen Tyler, of Cedartown, was held in connection with the mishap on a misdemeanor warrant charging hit-and-run driving.

Officers Johnson and Peck quoted witnesses as saying that the driver of the car stopped to investigate, handed the semi-conscious musician a dollar bill and left, refusing to tell witnesses his name or address. W. R. Langston, of the Darlington school faculty, gave chase and obtained the tag number, which was traced by city police, and Tyler was arrested later in Cedartown.

LLOYD GEORGE, WELLES CONFER

Peace Envoy Stays Over-time With Briton.

LONDON, March 13. (P)—Surgeon Welles, winding up a four-day fact-finding visit in London, talked so long today with David Lloyd George, Britain's World War prime minister, that his closely packed schedule was disrupted.

What they talked about was a secret as have been the rest of the conferences held by the undersecretary of state on his swing through Europe to obtain information for President Roosevelt.

When Welles and Lloyd George stayed together beyond their allotted time, the American envoy's other appointments were postponed till later in the day.

Welles rounded out his visit with a chat with Prime Minister Chamberlain over the dinner table at No. 10 Downing street.

He is scheduled to leave for Paris tomorrow morning for brief interviews with French statesmen, then hold a final parley in Rome with Premier Mussolini and sail for the United States March 18.

SENATE SAYS PROBE NOT AIMED AT FBI

WASHINGTON, March 13. (P)—Senator Green, Democrat, Rhode Island, declared tonight that his resolution for a senate investigation of wire tapping was not directed at the Federal Bureau of Investigation, but instead was based purely on evidence uncovered by the FBI.

Green said in a statement that he had "the greatest feeling of regard for Mr. Hoover (Director J. Edgar Hoover, of the FBI), for the splendid work that he has done in law enforcement, and for the efficient and excellent organization he has built up."

SONJA, IN HONOLULU, DENIES SHE WILL WED

HONOLULU, March 13. (P)—Sonja Henie, the ice skater, arrived today on the steamship Matsonia for an island vacation still denying any plans to marry Dan R. Topping, sportsman, also a passenger.

Sonja and Topping ran about the decks of the ship holding hands and whispering but issuing denials there were to be wedding bells.

"No, we are not going to get married," smilingly said the film star. "Yes, we are in love — I mean we are friends."

Topping nodded confirmation that they were good friends.

Friends Attempt To Contact Spirit of Departed Darrow

By ERNEST BARCELLA. CHICAGO, March 13. (UP)—A small cluster of the late Clarence Darrow's friends and relatives enacted a strange ritual today in the dreary atmosphere of a cold drizzle.

They gathered on a bridge spanning the Jackson Park lagoon and tried to "contact" the famed criminal lawyer's "spirit."

The bridge was Darrow's favorite retreat in life and, after his death, it was from there, by his own request—that his ashes were scattered to the winds.

Two Years to the Hour. The hour was 12:30 p. m.—two years to the hour after Darrow died.

The group included Darrow's widow, his son, Paul, and his friend, Claude D. Noble, Detroit magician.

At the stroke of 12:30, Noble asked those present to bow their heads and recite the Lord's Prayer. In his right hand, Noble held a hymn book Darrow had autographed in 1933. Noble stepped forward, lifted his face heavenward and intoned these words:

"Clarence Darrow—I am here in fulfillment of your pact made with me. If you can manifest yourself, do it now."

Noble's reference was to a "vibration pact" he and Darrow had made in a Detroit hotel room in 1936. They had agreed then that when one died, the other would go to a designated place and attempt by "vibrations" to contact the departed on the anniversary of his death.

Book Is Target. After he addressed Darrow's "spirit," Noble held out the hymn book.

"If Darrow is present in spirit," Noble explained, "that presence will create a vibration that will knock the book out of my hand."

Noble waited a full minute. Nothing happened. He repeated the ritualistic words. Still nothing happened.

"I will continue to attempt a contact on each anniversary of Darrow's death," he promised.

METHODISTS SEEK SHIFT IN MISSIONS

Would Remove the Board From Nashville to New York.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., March 13. (P)—Removal of the board of missions of the former Methodist Episcopal church, South, from Nashville to New York, where the boards of the three branches of Methodism will be combined, will be recommended at the first general conference of the United Methodist churches in Atlantic City this spring, it was revealed tonight.

Decision for recommendation of the change was reached yesterday at a meeting of the committee on locations at Columbus, Ohio, Dr. Elmer Clark, editor of the World Outlook, missionary periodical, said.

To offset the loss to Nashville, Dr. Clark said he was informed that the committee would recommend that the combined board of Christian education be established here.

IT'S TIME to put aside the paper

Drop your paper and grab your hat—bring along a friend for company.

Anywhere you go there'll be a bottle waiting. It's beer—a beer that will make this moment a Great Occasion!

Ask for Schlitz, and you'll get a surprise. There's a smart new label on the famous Brown Bottle—and that's the tip-off.

The beer that made Milwaukee famous is finer than ever now!

Brewed to celebrate life's great occasions, the first sip of this even finer Schlitz is an event all by itself.

You've never known such a flavor and savor... or such glorious freshness and cleanness of taste.

That's because Schlitz comes to you completely protected from the effect of air.

Protected by a special Schlitz process that removes air from every bottle the instant the beer pours in.

So you drink it flavor-fresh—free from the flat, dull taste that even a thimbleful of air can impart to beer.

Why wait for something to celebrate? Taste it now and discover for yourself the new pleasure this even finer Schlitz contributes to good living!

Would You Spend Five Minutes To Find A Life-Long Friend?

That's all the time it will take—for your first bottle of Schlitz will be the beginning of a beautiful and lasting friendship. There's something so outstanding in the luscious freshness and flavor of this mellow, brisk beer that you'll never order any other brand. Just take time out to try a bottle and see.

Note the new cream, gold and brown label on the famous brown bottle.

FLOATS TO ENTER ANNUAL DOGWOOD FESTIVAL PARADE

More Than 100 Entries Expected for Opening Feature of Celebration Here April 16 to 24.

More than 100 decorated floats will feature Atlanta's greatest dogwood festival in "Gardens on Parade," Mrs. R. L. Cooney, chairman, announced yesterday. Mayor Hartsfield issued a proclamation setting April 16-24 as Atlanta Dogwood Festival Week, called on all Atlantans to join in the observance and invited visitors and tourists to come to Atlanta.

Mrs. Cooney yesterday was enthusiastic about the prospects of the biggest and most colorful observance ever held.

"It is shaping up as the finest program we have ever had," she said. "The weather is dreary now, but Atlanta, which so successfully put on the first dogwood festival during the depression, is going to dig things this year."

Garden clubs and civic organizations have been invited to participate in the street parade at 3 o'clock April 16, which will be the feature of the opening of the week's observance.

Street dancing, band concerts and typically southern choral programs will be held at Five Points and several entertainment features are scheduled for the municipal auditorium.

13-Year-Old Helens Write, Direct, Star in Play To Open Tomorrow; All They Need Is a Crowd

Sacred Heart Pupils Stake Their Money on Production.

By LEE ROGERS.

Talent scouts, if you're looking for the Katharine Cornells, Ginger Rogers, Tallulah Bankheads and Clare Booths of tomorrow all rolled into two—we've got 'em.

They are two Irish girls named Helen. Just mites of girls for their 13 years, but they are on their way if determination helps. They wanted to dance. So, they organized the kids in the neighborhood into a club called "The Dancing Slippers." And now, about a month later and with bigger ideas, they wrote a play for the club to produce.

They Do Everything. These two little Sacred Heart students not only are the playwrights, but the play's producers, directors, dance instructors, stars—and yesterday they turned press agents, demanding of the hard-boiled city editor a legitimate reason why they shouldn't have their pictures in the paper and publicity for their show.

Well, here their pictures are. And publicity.

Fiery Miss Tallulah Bankhead never did better than that.

Oh, yes, their names. When they get to Broadway you won't recognize these, but right now they go by—Helen Marie Davin and Helen O'Leary. They live in the same neighborhood. Helen Marie is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Davin, of 1116 Piedmont avenue, and the other Helen is the daughter of P. F. O'Leary, of 164 Fourth street.

They are Irish to the heart—with big blue eyes. Their first play is called "St. Patrick's Recital," and they are presenting it tomorrow night at 8 o'clock in the Little Theater in the Studio Arts building.

Costs Money. "We've got to have all the publicity we can get 'cause the theater is costing us lots of money and we've got to have a big crowd," they said. "We've got a grown-up piano player, and he's costing us money too."

Billy Holmes, who brings in the stories about Miss Cornell and Miss Bankhead when they are here, couldn't do a better job of pleading for extra space.

Helen, it could have been either, said the play has been in rehearsal at the O'Learys' apartment for about three weeks. The entire club membership of 20 gets around about three times a week to go through their routines and have Helen O'Leary teach them new steps.

Helen had another gag ready too. They are having a dress-maker make their costumes, and that is another expense and necessity for a big crowd. But the Helens designed the wearing apparel.

It's their show from start to finish. No help from anyone—unless you count whoever it was who wrote the music to "Wearing of the Green," "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling," and "My Wild Irish Rose." The music for the show is a steal from them, but the Helens don't think anyone will mind.

MANCHESTER FORMS POST OFFICE PLANS

Special to THE CONSTITUTION. MANCHESTER, Ga., March 13. (AP)—Plans for the new $65,000 Manchester post office building are rapidly being drawn up. Postmaster Welby Griffith announced today. Plans call for the main address to be delivered by Fourth District Congressman A. Sidney Camp, he said.

Exact date for the exercises has not been decided. It is expected that R. S. Cole, deputy second assistant postmaster general from Washington, D. C., also will appear on the dedicatory program.

Constitution Staff Photo—H. J. Slayton.

Only 13, but they have written a play, produced it, directed it, starred in it, and devised the dance routines. Left to right are Helen Marie Davin and Helen O'Leary, eighth grade students at Sacred Heart school. Yesterday they turned press agents, seeking a little publicity for their show which will be given tomorrow night.

TEAMSTERS' UNION STRIKE IS ENDED

Official Says Matters in Dispute Settled.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., March 13. (AP)—The eight-day strike of the Southeastern Teamsters' Union (AFL) against the Hoover Truck Company, interstate transportation company, ended late today with announcement by E. H. Hoover, president of the line, and Pat Ansboury, union official, that all matters in the dispute had been settled.

Hoover said the company had agreed to recognize the union, and had agreed to the payment of 45 cents an hour for pickup men and 40 cents an hour for dock employees. Hours also will be reduced.

Ansboury said the union had obtained a contract for one year calling for 100 per cent closed shop and a check-off system, by which the company agreed to collect dues from its employees and pay them over to the union. The strike was called in Atlanta last Monday night.

FINAL RITES TODAY FOR M. E. STEVENS

Burial Will Take Place in Columbus.

Final rites for M. E. Stevens, 75, East Point Chemical Company executive, who died Tuesday in Miami, will be conducted at 11 o'clock this morning at the First Baptist church, East Point.

Dr. W. A. Duncan and Dr. C. R. Stauffer will officiate and burial will be in the Riverside cemetery, Columbus, Ga., under direction of A. C. Hemperley & Sons.

PRESIDENT OPPOSES WATERWAY PROJECTS

WASHINGTON, March 13. (AP) On the eve of a meeting of the National Rivers and Harbors Congress, a private organization which devotes its energies to getting government money for waterway projects, President Roosevelt informed three senators today that congress should not authorize any more such undertakings at this session.

Chairman Bailey, Democrat, North Carolina, of the senate commerce committee, and Senators Sheppard, Democrat, Texas, and McNary, Republican, Oregon, committee members, discussed the matter with Mr. Roosevelt at a White House conference. Bailey said the President believed enough authorization for flood control and river and harbor projects had been piled up for the next two or three years.

GENERAL JOHNSON GOES UNDER KNIFE

WASHINGTON, March 13. (AP) Brigadier General Raymond F. Metcalfe, command of Walter Reed hospital, said tonight that Hugh S. Johnson, newspaper columnist and retired army officer, on whom he operated Monday, was "progressing favorably."

Johnson entered the hospital on Saturday. General Metcalfe said his condition was not serious.

ATLANTANS RENAMED BY SURGEONS' GROUP

Dr. Ben T. Beasley, Atlanta, was re-elected secretary, and Dr. L. Minor Blackford, Atlanta, was re-named editor of the Southern Surgeon during the final session of the Southeastern Surgical congress yesterday in Birmingham, Ala.

Dr. Irvin Abell, Louisville, Ky., elected at the 1939 convention in Atlanta, was installed as president, and Dr. Julian Rawls, Norfolk, Va., was named president-elect. Richmond, Va., was chosen for the 1941 convention.

Red Cross Launches Survey, Mobilizes Forces To Assist Victims.

SHREVEPORT, La., March 13. (AP)—Rehabilitation of whole sections of the city, flattened by a tornado which killed 13, began today as the Red Cross mobilized its forces to aid the homeless.

The freakish winds which whirled men, women and children through the air, killed 10 persons here yesterday and then moved into Texas, killing three more between Elysian Fields and Bethany.

The Shreveport chapter of the American Red Cross began an immediate survey. Another survey was under way by the Disaster Loan Corporation.

CCC youths and national guardsmen with fixed bayonets guarded the devastated area. Mayor Sam Caldwell sent gangs of city workmen to clear up debris.

PUTNAM GROUP FLAYS COTTON RESTRICTIONS

Special to THE CONSTITUTION. EATONTON, Ga., March 13.—The Putnam county cotton committee today protested the county's low acreage allotment to Congressmen Carl Vinson.

Citing examples of Putnam farmers being allowed to plant only 2.1-2 acres of cotton in many instances, the letter urged the solon to send an expert to the county to study local conditions.

Congress Spent $2,294 To Meet King and Queen

WASHINGTON, March 13. (AP) It costs congress $2,294 to shake hands with the King and Queen of Great Britain last summer.

The item was disclosed today when testimony before a house appropriations subcommittee was made public. The house and the senate split the bill evenly.

The reception, held for their majesties in the capitol rotunda, lasted less than an hour. The expenses were largely for floral decorations, velvet ropes and other incidentals.

SNOW, ICE COVER BIG PART OF U. S.

No Immediate Relief Forecast for Freezing Area.

By The Associated Press. Snow and ice covered wide central areas of the nation yesterday. A thick blanket of snow was spread over most of Minnesota and the Dakotas. Ice coated all Iowa, northern Illinois, northern Indiana, southern Michigan and southern Minnesota.

Weather men saw no immediate relief for the ice-bound area. The forecast was for continued rain and freezing temperature.

After record-breaking minimum readings in upstate New York, the mercury rose sharply.

In the south, soaking rains swept across Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia and North Carolina. Most of Louisiana and Texas—scene of Tuesday's tornadic wind and hailstorm, reported clearing skies.

Sister Not To Be Charged; Two Negroes To Die for Murder.

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

NEWNAN, Ga., March 13.—Hill Bunn, 53, Coweta county tenant farmer, today faced life imprisonment after a short superior court trial in which he was charged with the "cordwood stick" murder of Spalding McClendon, 74, White Oak farmer, on November 27.

Bunn, it was charged, concealed himself, with a heavy stick in his hand, and, while his sister held McClendon in conversation, stepped out to strike.

The jury found Bunn guilty, but recommended mercy.

Solicitor General W. Y. Atkinson said tonight no case would be made against the sister, Mrs. Gertrude E. Harris, because of lack of evidence.

A jury late today returned verdicts of guilty against Johnnie Shropshire and Eddie Hayes, Negroes, charged with the murder and burning of Will Canady, Senoia Negro, and Judge Wyatt sentenced both to die in the electric chair. They were charged with shooting Canady with his own gun, setting fire to the house, and stealing $134 from Canady.

The court yesterday acquitted Sergeant William "Bud" Lee, of Fort Benning and near Carrollton, charged with involuntary manslaughter in the death of R. E. L. Jones, of Whitesburg.

Jones was killed April 1, 1939, when a car driven by Sergeant Lee and containing two other Benning soldiers struck him. The car had been driven across Jones' bridge, which was in flames, and Jones was among those watching the fire.

'Dress Rehearsal' Shows Need For Revisions in U. S. Aircraft

Release of Swift Planes Causes Inquiry by Congress.

By DEVON FRANCIS.
Associated Press Aviation Editor.
NEW YORK, March 13.—A "dress rehearsal" in American airplane manufacture, against the chance that the United States might become involved in war, has shown the need for revisions in aircraft design.

An inquiry into the sale of American planes abroad, to be started tomorrow by a house subcommittee in Washington, is expected to show that the "rehearsal" has taken two forms. One is the testing of late-type planes under actual wartime conditions in France and England. The other is gauging the nation's ability to produce aircraft in quantity by filling large foreign orders.

Resulted in Inquiry.
The release of 400-mile-an-hour army fighting planes to European belligerents resulted in the congressional inquiry. The army today disclosed the release for foreign sale of a second high speed fighter, a Lockheed P-38 two-motor interceptor pursuit craft credited with a top speed of 420 miles an hour in a test flight. A Curtiss P-40 fighter was released earlier.

American engineers said the Allied-German war already had shown that within three months after America entered a war, even the best of our present warplanes would be discarded.

"Dress Rehearsal."
The "dress rehearsal," in other words, has shown that the brand-new planes only now going into production in this country are obsolete if not actually obsolete as wartime types.

Private advice received here from abroad say that for every pilot killed fighting, six are killed in accidents not connected with combat. That is due in part to the fact that the pursuit planes being manufactured by all world powers land at speeds of 85 to 90 miles an hour.

Airmen manage to get such machines down without accident in peacetime, but war is another matter.

This is a transition period in American warplane design. Tomorrow's planes will be simplified. At the outside, they will contain only three, or at most four, things for a pilot to watch; his maneuvering controls, his throttle, his guns and perhaps a fuel mixture knob.

Oil production in Argentina is breaking all records.

FORMER OFFICIAL OF INDIA IS SLAIN

Assassin Wounds Three Others at London Meeting.

LONDON, March 13.—(P)—A retired British Indian administrator was shot and killed tonight and the secretary for India and two other Britons prominent in governing the turbulent sub-continent were wounded by a single assassin.

At a crowded meeting to discuss Indian questions, a thick-set Indian pulled out a pistol and fired shots which project the problem of independence for India's millions into a new limelight.

Sir Michael O'Dwyer, former lieutenant governor of the Punjab, fell dead with two bullets in his chest. Lord Zetland, secretary of state for India, was grazed by a bullet. Sir Louis Dane and Lord Lamington, both former British administrators of Indian provinces, were wounded in the arm.

The assassin was captured by police.

effected, would be intended to protect the independence and boundaries of Sweden, Norway and Finland from aggression—mainly, it is presumed, Russian or German.

Despite the treaty stipulation for ratification by the Finnish diet within three days, Tanner said this might take two weeks.

After the hush of the armistice, it became known that some of the fiercest fighting of the war took place in the final hours before peace.

Soldiers Stunned.
When the fighting ceased suddenly, the men who a few minutes before had been in the midst of battle were stunned by the quiet.

In the 7 1-2 hours between the signing of the peace treaty and the armistice the Russians and Finns were attacking and counter-attacking on three fronts and air forces of both sides were active.

The Finnish aviators, however, returned to their bases an hour before the armistice. The Russians bombed two towns, wounding three civilians.

At the end the Finns were still holding a good portion of the peace-lost-Mannerheim line in the central and eastern parts of the isthmus, and on all fronts they were holding their own.

There are tremendous physical problems for the Finns in this treaty which takes historic Viipuri and the whole Karelian isthmus into the Soviet Union; makes a Russian inland lake of Ladoga, Europe's greatest; leases Gibraltar-like Hanko to Russia for a naval and military base and provides Russia with easy transit across Finland to the gates of Scandinavia.

A total of 450,000 evacuated residents from the isthmus and Ladoga areas must be resettled and provided for.

Cession of territory taken by Russia and the withdrawal of Finnish troops will start March 15 and end on April 10. Hanko must be handed over within 10 days.

Tanner, however, said Finland intended to make every preparation of her own to protect her new borders.

Fortify Borders.
Asked if she would be permitted to fortify these borders under the peace treaty, he asked: "Who is going to stop us?"

"Our military commanders say all borders are defensible," he added.

200,000 REDS SLAIN, MANNERHEIM SAYS

Leader Bitterly Tells West 'We Have Paid Our Debt.'

HELSINKI, March 14 (Thursday).—(P)—Field Marshal Baron Carl Gustaf Mannerheim in a final order of the day declared bitterly early today that Finland has "paid to the very last penny any debt we may have owed to the west."

The aged leader estimated that 200,000 Russians and 15,000 Finns were slain in the 105-day war ending yesterday.

(Baron Mannerheim apparently meant that Finland had held the fort for the western democracies for three and a half months despite the fact that no large-scale military help came from the west. Finland, alone of America's World War debtors, always has kept up its payments.)

"Our fate is hard now that we are compelled to give up to an alien race, a race with a life philosophy and moral values different from ours," his message said.

Referring to the "exacting peace which has ended to Soviet Russia nearly every battlefield on which you have shed your blood on behalf of everything we hold dear and sacred," Mannerheim told his soldiers:

"You did not want war. You asked peace, work and progress; but you were forced into a struggle in which you have done great deeds, and if 200,000 of our enemies now lie on the snowdrifts gazing with broken eyes at their stony sky, the fault is not yours."

"You did not hate them or wish them evil; you merely followed the stern law of war, kill or be killed."

he asserted, remain in Finnish hands.

(In Stockholm, Foreign Minister Christian Gunther warned that the "danger is not over" for Sweden and hinted at a possible defense alliance of the north countries as a result of Finland's peace with Russia.

(Addressing a special meeting of the Swedish parliament, Gunther said the question of strengthening co-operation among the northern countries should be submitted to "an unbiased examination."

(At the same time he disclosed final Russian peace terms to Finland differed from those first submitted by Russia and which Sweden passed on to Finland.)

(In Copenhagen, the Politiken's Stockholm correspondent reported that he had learned from Helsinki that possibly the whole Finnish government will resign within a day, with a provisional government to be established to ratify the Russo-Finn peace agreement, according to the Associated Press.

(The newspaper said the new government would resume diplomatic relations with Russia before a new permanent government was established.)

HELSINKI IS HUSHED, SADDENED BY PEACE

Finns Take Comfort From Hymn, 'Mighty Fortress Is Our God.'

HELSINKI, March 13.—(P)—Helsinki lay under a fresh, white blanket of snow today and water dripping slowly from the eaves set the tempo for the resumption of peace-time life in this saddened capital.

The fight was ended. The guns which had challenged the might of a nation 50 times the size of this little northern republic were stilled. Finns took what comfort they could from the melancholy melody of their old hymn, "A Mighty Fortress Is Our God."

In one hotel where a silent group gathered around a radio on the second floor the hush was so unusual and so oppressive that a dog on the first floor howled during the entire program.

Sitting in a radio station a few blocks away Tanner, with deep lines in his normally cheerful face, read slowly with shoulders hunched. The studio staff listened with tears in their eyes and spoke in whispers. When newspapermen asked for a few words with the tired man he only said softly "not now—maybe later."

On streets with new snow packed on a layer of ice several inches deep traffic moved slowly. Mothers led their children along the sidewalks—safe for the first time in 105 days from air raids.

"No matter how brave they are men cannot fight on indefinitely when they must fight three hours then rest three and return to the trenches," a war bride said, "especially when your cannon are worn and you have no more ammunition. I hope my husband is safe. He fought so hard."

Here and there walked soldiers on crutches, a bandaged veteran of Taipale river or the siege of Viipuri. They were not smiling.

Rebellion Simmers in Commons Over Britain's Finnish Policies

Hore-Belisha Demands Full Discussion of Chamberlain Acts.

LONDON, March 13.—(P)—Former War Secretary Hore-Belisha today angrily challenged the Allied "excuse for inaction" in the dispatch of large-scale aid to Finland during a stormy session of the house of commons which showed the makings of a full-fledged parliamentary rebellion against Neville Chamberlain's government.

In the dismal light of the Finnish-Russian peace, the volatile minister whom Chamberlain fired on January 5 demanded a review of the government's "whole conduct of the war" with Germany, and denounced as a "pure technicality" the Allied stand that troops, although ready, could not be sent to Finland until Finland formally asked for them. The troops never were sent; Finland made peace instead.

Lloyd George Speaks.
Whiteman David Lloyd George added somber warning to Hore-Belisha's cutting criticism, and disgruntled conservatives and liberals appeared to be uniting with opposition labor around the two statesmen.

The commons approved, 192 to 2, a request for 700,000,000 pounds ($2,800,000,000) for war purposes. This vote was despite a plea of the Leftist firebrand, J. McGovern, for an attempt to end the war before the "tremendous slaughter begins."

Reliable sources reported that a full debate on the war situation would be held March 19, with Chamberlain presenting a general review and replying to questions of an aroused house.

Chamberlain said every Finnish request for aid had "been answered," and denied under Hore-Belisha's probing that any "requests for men had been made by the Finnish government."

The United Press said that with the Finnish war ended, British and neutral sources in London declared tonight that they expect Germany and Russia—possibly with the assistance of Italy and the United States—to launch an immediate peace offensive. It seems certain, however, that Britain firmly will resist peace attempts.

The Russian military command today announced its troops had captured the city of Viipuri. Moscow proclaimed the dictated peace a new triumph for Joseph Stalin's "policy of peace."

Rumania was disclosed to be discussing plans with Soviet officials in Berlin for a nonaggression pact.

Now reason it out for yourself by comparing your problem with this example—Let's say that after you paid living expenses out of your last monthly income, there were a few dollars left—say $13.00. The sum for which creditors were screaming last month was $35.00. Those $35.00 couldn't do the job. But one Industrial Loan pays all bills in full—ends collectors' calls and eases up your nerves—and you make only one loan payment just once a month; it's definitely less than the sum you had left in your budget to meet numerous bills—NOW if you pay up bills—and the loan payment is less than that left over budget money, you can save the cash difference while you're repaying the loan—and you're given the time you need at legal interest.

Stop worrying—get your money today—sleep better tonight.

HUGE '38 PROGRAM OF PWA IS NEARING END OVER NATION

Great Scheme of Public Works Will Stop in Four Months If Money Isn't Appropriated.

WASHINGTON, March 13.—(P) The Public Works Administration today reported that the 1938 billion-dollar PWA program was 86 per cent complete.

Colonel E. W. Clark, acting PWA commissioner, added that all projects would be finished within the next four months. Thereafter, unless Congress appropriates more money, the whole scheme of public works which have cost nearly $6,000,000,000 since 1933 will come to a standstill.

Clark said that 5,318 of 6,156 projects carried on under the 1938 act have been completed. Most of them were schools, water works, hospitals and sewage disposal plants, but they ranged in cost from a $1,000 school improvement to $65,000,000 for Pennsylvania's superhighway from Pittsburgh to Harrisburg.

JURORS INDICT 21 IN WAR ON LOTTERY

Two Others Charged With Vagrancy in Additional True Bills.

Continuing its drive against the lottery, the Fulton county grand jury yesterday returned 21 more lottery indictments and two charging vagrancy during a special session devoted to the "bug."

Named in the lottery true bills were four white persons, including two women, and 17 Negroes.

Those indicted follow: Mrs. Annie L. Moore, Mrs. Bessie Langley, L. W. Ward and Fred Hunter, white, and the following Negroes: Henry Avery, Ida Alexander, William Bell, Richard Cloud, Bessie Craddock, James Durden, Clark Huey, Bill Hillsman, R. C. Harris, Ed. Johnson, Levy Jones, Joseph Moses, Fred Newman, Ozzie Smith, Rosa Wheeler, Juanita Williams, and Douglas Watson.

Vagrancy bills were returned against William Riley, Negro, and Johnnie Gates Jr.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pints of bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food may not digest. It may just decay in the bowels. Gas builds up your stomach. You get constipated. You feel sour, sunk and the world looks lunk.

It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pints of bile flowing freely to make you feel "up and up." Amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. 10c and 25c. Stubbornly refuse anything else.

Heads Conference

DR. W. H. G. HENRY.

METHODISTS PLAN SPLIT CONFERENCE

Dr. Henry, Superintendent, Announces Meetings for Tonight, Tuesday.

Departing from the age-old custom of crowding all the business of a church district quarterly conference into one day's meeting, Dr. W. H. G. Henry, superintendent of the Atlanta Methodist district, tonight will inaugurate a new procedure, a split conference.

Under the new plan, the first part of the conference will be held at 7:30 o'clock tonight at Grace Methodist church, with the concluding session to be held Tuesday. Dr. Henry says this division will eliminate confusion.

Tonight routine matters relative to licensing of young preachers, recommendations for admission of preachers on trial, and discussions of revivals will be considered. Each of the 57 pastoral charges in the Atlanta district will be represented by a pastor and from six to 20 lay members.

On next Tuesday, every phase of the new united Methodist church's worldwide program will come up for discussion. Dr. William P. King, of Nashville, formerly of Atlanta, will deliver the sermon on this occasion.

AMATEUR CRITICS TO SEE FILM TODAY

'Of Mice and Men' Preview Will Be Held at 9:30 O'Clock.

One hundred of Atlanta's would-be critics will be the honor guests at the preview of "Of Mice and Men" at 9:30 o'clock this morning at the Paramount theater. The amateur critics will be the guests of The Constitution and the Paramount theater, and will write a 250-word criticism of John Steinbeck's story of "Lennie," the morose, strong farmer boy, and his pal, "George."

"Of Mice and Men" starts for a week's engagement at the Paramount theater tomorrow, and Lon Chaney Jr., Burgess Meredith and Betty Field play the leading roles. All contestants who attend the preview must have their criticisms on the desk of The Constitution's "Of Mice and Men" contest editor by noon Saturday.

Winners of the prizes, $25, $10, $5, and ten $1 prizes cash and 20 guest tickets to the movie, will be announced in Monday morning's paper.

MAN ELUDES POLICE AND SO DOES AUTO

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., March 13.—(P)—County policemen, called to the airport to investigate a suspicious person, let the wanted man walk by unrecognized.

Then, when their search failed to produce results, they returned to find their car missing. The stolen automobile was recovered later—wrecked. The suspicious person is on the wanted list.

WHISTLE-TO-SUPPER BRINGS POLICEMEN

OMAHA, Neb., March 13.—(P) Omaha Officers Harold Kelly and Hugh Ashburn were summoned to investigate a "mysterious whistle" in an apartment house neighborhood. They heard the whistle, but saw only a lone youngster running along the street.

"Sure I know where that whistle is coming from," the youngster retorted to the officers' query. "That's ... old man whistling me home to supper."

TECH WILL DISPLAY WORK TO PUBLIC

Classrooms and Laboratories To Be Open All Day Saturday.

Because St. Patrick is the patron saint of all engineers, and Sunday is his day, Georgia Tech's classrooms and laboratories will be open to high school students in particular and the public in general all day Saturday for displays of student work.

Sponsored by the newly organized Professional and Honorary Engineering Council, whose members will conduct tours through the college's various departments, the exhibit is designed to give the public a cross-section view of student life and work.

The council is composed of delegates from each of nine honorary engineering societies, Tau Beta Pi, Pi Tau Sigma, Kappa Eta Kappa, Alpha Chi Sigma, American Ceramics Society, Phi Psi, Bricarean, Civil Crew and the Institute of Aeronautical Sciences.

J. S. Stubbins is honorary president and Ed Kniesel is president. Other officers are R. T. Spangle, vice president; Wilson McGough, secretary, and Dr. Harold Bunker, faculty treasurer.

DEPUTIES SEEK VICTIM, FIND IT'S THEMSELVES

TWIN FALLS, Idaho, March 13.—(P)—A radio found in a doorway was turned over to the sheriff's office. Deputies tried unsuccessfully to find the owner.

Then they found out it had been stolen from a deputy's car which was being repaired.

Bidders Believe Congresswoman Also Can Cook

WASHINGTON, March 13.—(P) When it comes to putting up box lunches, a congresswoman apparently has it all over supreme court wives et al.

At least, there is no gainsaying the evidence of last night when box lunches, "packed by the dainty hands" of some of the capital's leading women were auctioned off for the benefit of Spanish refugees.

The high bid for the lunch put up by Representative Caroline O'Day, Democrat, New York, was $5. Among the others were: Mrs. Hugo Black and Mrs. William O. Douglas, $3; Mrs. Harold Ickes, wife of the secretary of the interior, and Mrs. Frances Biddle, wife of the solicitor general, $2.

TRIAL POSTPONED FOR QUINTAR SOUTH

Burglary Charge To Be Heard in Juvenile Court March 27.

Hearing in the case of Quintar South, whose charge that a burglary confession was extorted from him by burning has resulted in the indictment of Plainclothes Officer W. F. Sutherland in state and federal courts, was postponed yesterday morning by request of South's attorney, George Willingham.

The boy had appeared before Judge Garland Watkins in juvenile court to face a hearing on four counts charging burglary.

Willingham based his request for delay on the fact that an error in name appeared in the indictment which charged the burglary of a printshop belonging to R. M. Taylor, Negro. The indictment named Taylor variously as D. M. Taylor and C. L. Taylor.

The case was set for rehearing on March 27, two days after Sutherland is scheduled to go on trial in federal court on the burning charge. Sutherland made $2,000 bond yesterday.

Meanwhile the boy, at the request of the Child Welfare Association, was released from the juvenile detention home in their care.

Smart Outfits for All Occasions

Four more entries in Fashion's Hall of Fame are ready today as post-time is billed March 14, 1940. The race will be a close one, for even with one entry drawing the coveted No. 1 position, the other three will ease up to a neck-and-neck position to cross the fashion line for a glorious and glamorous finish. Holders of lucky duplicate models will be in the money, for no smarter outfits than the four pictured above can be found in Atlanta for the price. At the left, in No. 1 position, is the exotic-looking Alyce O'Neal, who reminds one of Russia, spies and intrigue. She is wearing a favorite with all the fashion spectators, a navy wool coat that buttons all the way down the front. The white lingerie trim gives a dainty, crisp touch and the hat is one of those smart upturned roll brim Bretons with a white accent. Navy bag and shoes complete the ensemble. No. 2 position is none other than the glamour entry, June Spalding, who has that smart and saucy look wearing a model of an impetuous sheer and trimmed with black and white linen collars and cuffs! She is mysterious to the extent that she will not even tell if she is headed for a tea or a tete-a-tete, but her dress will be smart either place. Notice the hat and furs. At the third position is Louise McCauley, who could demand a career or a career in the jaunty outfit she is wearing. She can ease up to first place in the fashion race without any trouble because she has that feminine look and attitude that is a must for this season. Her suit is a navy sheer wool with the white pique at the collar, and featuring a double-breasted closing on the jacket. The modified flared skirt is youthful and graceful. Her sailor is chalk white straw and is trimmed with a jaunty navy quill. She wears white doekin gloves and navy pumps. The pose that refreshes even in the fashion race is displayed here by Miss Spalding, who makes a double entry, this time wearing a dark brown skirt with a brown and white imported sheer wool coat. Her Hudson Bay sables give an air of distinction, and she carries an alligator bag and her hat is a smart spring straw. Price of "admission" to the fashion race may be had by calling Lillian Mae at The Constitution at Walnut 6565.

A Visit to Atlanta Stores

Combination of Tailored, Dressmaker Lines Shown In Spring Trend of Coats

By Sheila Graham.

HOLLYWOOD, March 13.—Priscilla Lane has followed the prevailing custom of copying clothes for private wear from her pictures. Copies of a couple of evening gowns worn by Priscilla in "Brother Rat and a Baby" now repose in her home wardrobe—a youthful formal of blue and white cotton in a bold print, with snug bodice and full tiered skirt. Across the neck and back line is a wreath of gardenias. Her other gown is a jacket dinner dress of blue and white checked faille. The skirt has a bright red jersey top, broad-fitted waistband and skirt that flares from the waist. The tiny jacket has a notched collar and facing of white pique.

You get an idea of the spring trend of coats by the costumes designed for Andrea Leeds to wear in Twentieth Century-Fox's production of "Earthbound," which show a clever combination of tailored and dressmaker lines. A typical one is of Aquamarine wool with double-breasted closing, fitted waistline, but with soft cartridge pleats at shoulder and at cuff of sleeves. The coat is worn over a simple frock of henna-rose silk with accessories matching the dress.

Flowers and veils come with the spring to judge by the two hats purchased by Brenda Joyce, both of them boasting either flowers or veiling. For afternoon wear with a dull blue frock Brenda wears a cap of matching blue poppies and soft pink moss rosebuds thickly swathed in blue veiling. Very gay is Brenda's Gay Nineties sailor in canary yellow straw with two immense roses placed like a pom-pom at center front, the flowers shading from yellow to russet. The hat is draped in navy blue veil.

A pearl-studded belt is the highlight of Laraine Day's shirt-maker dinner frock. Fashioned of black crepe de chine, the dress features long sleeves with snug cuffs at the wrist fastened by matching pearl buttons. The skirt is wide with the fullness concentrated at the front. The gown's simplicity is relieved by a cream-colored petticoat, very feminine with a flounce of embroidered organdy. The Metro actress completes her ensemble with black crepe, open-toed sandals.

Red currants are the trim on Rosalind Russell's spring hat. Held on by tulle, the hat features a shield effect that points down toward the eye and is covered by the fruit. Rosalind wears the hat to top a plain black, wool ensemble.

For a suit that is good for daytime or evening wear, Helen Gilbert selects fine black woolen fabric with a slightly flared skirt topped by a wrist-length jacket. A tiny waistline is achieved by the two seams that follow the curve of the body. A novel touch—the four pockets that accent the jacket at the shoulder and hips. Color is added to the get-up with a peplum blouse in green, black and white print.

Seen around town . . . Irene Dunne in a swaggar coat of toast brown in a crisp Seasoncraft wool, embroidered from neck to hemline in corded scrolls (Passanterie is very good this spring) . . . Lana Turner in a two-piece, fitted suit of beige strand wool, over which was worn a full-length cape in dusty wool . . . Linda Darnell in a dainty white angora sweater, with peplum, designed for evening wear, worn with long skirt in multi-colored plaid crepe . . . Vin Leigh wearing a navy blue street dress trimmed with white eyelet embroidery, a ruffle of white peeping out beneath the hemline of the dress, petticoat-fashion.

Barbara Stanwyck in a new referer coat in snow-white sheepskin, fuzzy and soft. Worn over a luggage-tan skirt . . . Brenda Joyce in white linen spectator sports dress with enormous white saddle pockets, elaborately embroidered in multi-colors. (Big pockets occur again and again.) . . . At Palm Springs . . . Myrna Loy in a one-piece suit in blue and white checked jersey, with a matching skirt which converted it into a spectator sports dress. . . Mrs. William Powell in a red and blue plaid, satin romper suit, over which was worn a full white pique skirt.

Married Man Warns Bachelor Against a Lonely Old Age

The Devotion a Father Feels For Son Is a Different Love

By Caroline Chatfield.

The other evening a bachelor was disporting himself to a married friend on the joys and privileges of singleness. "I'm never going to be married," he said defiantly. "The lone wolf life is good enough for me. I wouldn't trade my freedom for anything I've seen the benedicts enjoying." "Hold on to it," said the benedict, "if it suits you. But before old age catches you, there are some points to be considered and settled."

"The desolation of a lonely old age is something to reckon with. You haven't thought of that yet. Easy to understand why you haven't. You're in demand now because you are a bachelor. The women are always on a lookout for an eligible and the men are taking note of likely prospects for their sisters, single and divorced. Everybody that is having a dinner party or a table of bridge wants an extra man to fill in. Some day you will not be in demand for the same reason: that you are a bachelor."

"There's another thing we benedicts have discovered that you bachelors haven't dreamed of:

Avoid Errors When Caring For the Sick

When you must nurse a member of your family, are you beset by doubts? "Am I doing the right thing?" "Am I giving this medicine at the wrong time?" Only a knowledge of correct nursing procedure and routine can give you the confidence you need. To avoid mistakes in giving medicines, make a daily list of medications ordered by the doctor, with the times when they should be given. As you care for each one, check it off your list. Other errors may be made in your concern about your patient. Don't overload her tray in your anxiety to have her eat. A little food, daintily served, will stimulate her appetite more.

You will, of course, want to check your patient's condition accurately so you can act quickly when changes occur. Does he seem to be breathing faster? Normal respiration is 16 times a minute. To check your patient's rate, lay his hand on his chest, count the rises as you pretend to do something else. If your patient realizes your concern, he breathes faster automatically. Right information helps you also to avoid such mistakes as giving an enema without the doctor's orders, or washing the baby's fontanel (soft spot) too lightly.

In our 40-page booklet, Practical Instruction for the Home Nurse, a registered nurse explains in detail the right routine care of patients. Gives care in pregnancy, babyhood, after an operation. Describes symptoms, nursing of contagious illnesses, tells what to do in emergencies.

Send 15c in coins for our booklet, PRACTICAL INSTRUCTION FOR THE HOME NURSE, to Home Institute, The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga. Write plainly your name, address, and the name of booklet.

Woman's Quiz

Q. How can chewing gum be removed from clothing?
A. If the material is washable, soften the gum stain with egg white and then wash. Prolonged treatment is usually satisfactory, although it may be necessary to remove the traces of sugar by sponging with water. Treatment alternately with carbon tetrachloride and water is often effective.

Q. Are the brown-shelled eggs richer in food value than the white-shelled?
A. The results of numerous analyses show that there is practically no difference in composition.

Q. How fast do the fingernails grow?
A. This is an individual matter. Generally, two weeks or more are required for them to grow an eighth of an inch.

MY DAY: More Opportunities For Group Leadership

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

LANSING, Mich.—We had a very pleasant trip yesterday afternoon. Much to our surprise, we were met in St. Louis by Mr. T. M. Hayes, of the Wabash railroad. It turned out that he had been with Mr. Frederic Delano for 10 years that the latter was president of the Wabash and for several years thereafter. We were his guests on the trip to Decatur, Ill., where he was born and raised, and then back to Chicago. He made it a very pleasant journey. It is always interesting to travel with someone who is very enthusiastic about his job, and the Wabash railroad is quite evidently one of the main interests in Mr. Hayes' life. His father was with the railroad for 57 years, and he has already 37 years of service behind him.

Traditions such as this are rather rare in the United States, but the great opportunities for material advancement in our country came out several times in the conversation. He mentioned another man who started as a telegrapher and today, in middle life, occupies one of the high executive positions in another railroad.

I am not sure that in the next decade our young people can look forward to quite such rapid changes in their material situation, but it seems to me that there are more and more opportunities for leadership of groups opening up. These are found in labor, agricultural, civic and political groups. They will, perhaps, lead to a more divided and more widely distributed material rise and will give many individuals tremendous scope for their powers of leadership. The guiding of such groups through the transition period, which has many pitfalls but also many future possibilities, will be tremendously interesting and will satisfy the highest type of ambition.

One sees no sign of spring in any of the places we have been in so far, and so I was rather surprised to find quite a crowd braving the cold air to greet me at the station last night. We went directly from the train to the lecture hall. The audience in Decatur was an excellent audience, quiet and attentive, and the questions asked at the close of the lecture were nearly all interesting ones. Before leaving the building, I was able to greet one of the patients who had been at Warm Springs, Ga., and who returns there every six months. She is now attending the university and shows in her face a happy spirit, which is an achievement, for she has to move around in a wheel-chair.

Then I met a large group of newspaper people and returned to the train for a comfortable night on the way to Chicago.

This morning we were met by our friend, Inspector Daly, and after a very good breakfast, we drove about for an hour. It was the first time I had seen the University of Chicago buildings and the outside of the Rosenwald Museum. Sometime I hope to have time to see a little more of both these institutions. Now we are back on the train bound for Lansing, Mich.

A Physician Answers Questions

By Dr. William Brady.

Chlorination of Drinking Water.

Kindly give me your opinion of chlorine gas, chlorine water and powdered chlorine for purifying water . . . (A. B.)
Answer—Liquid chlorine is used by nearly 900 municipalities in the United States for disinfection of city water supplies. It was first so employed at Niagara Falls where the chlorine manufactured by power from the falls disinfects the city's drinking water. Chlorination of drinking water, by whatever form of chlorine, is essential for safety and has no ill effect on health. Even for disinfection of water in emergencies, as in camp or at a roadside spring, well or brook, a chlorine compound (chlorinated lime or "chloride of lime" as it is commonly called, or hypochlorite or chloramine or a tablet of chlorine compound intended for the purpose. Instructions for emergency disinfection of water given in monograph "Pocket First Aid Kit"—for copy send stamped envelope—bearing your address.

Before and After.
I am so happy—after five years of marriage we are at last expecting our first baby. In latter part of August, I guess. Now we want all the information you have. . . (Mrs. U. S.)

Answer—Send stamped envelope bearing your address and inclose 10 cents coin for Preparing for Maternity. Now or later send 10 cents additional for BBBBBB (Brady Better Bigger Baby Book).

Impervious Skin.
Our home economics class studying vitamins. We would like to know if it is possible to absorb vitamin A or vitamin D through the skin when a cream containing the vitamin is applied. . . (Miss T. M.)

Answer—In my opinion, it is not. Vitamins, chemicals, medicines may be absorbed through the mucous membrane lining nose or eyelids, but the unbroken skin to the best of my knowledge and belief, will not absorb anything as long as the skin remains unscratched, unpunctured, unblistered, unbranded, uncracked.

Stage Fright.
Please give the directions for preventing stage fright or examination jitters, as you called it. . . (Miss T. M.)
Answer—Send stamped envelope bearing your address and ask for monograph on the subject.

Today's Garden Tip

PRUNE all dead wood of shrubs and trees, including branches that show splits caused by icy weather, except gardenias. Prune all flowering shrubs that bloom in the summer, but do not prune red crape myrtle like it was a hedge. Do not prune shrubs that are flowering now or that will flower in the next three months, such as winter honeysuckle or forsythia. The Constitution's Annual Spring Garden School will be March 26-28 at the Atlanta Woman's Club.

Supplement "High Protein" Diet With Other Elements

By Ida Jean Kain.

You have probably been hearing about the "high protein" diets. Some of the movie stars have taken them up and that seems to be all that is needed to set a fashion in food or anything else.

One of the most-talked about protein diets is the chop and steak version. You have fruit juice and black coffee for breakfast; two chops and a green vegetable for lunch; and a lean steak and a green vegetable for dinner. Such a menu is high in protein and low in calories. You would feel fairly well fed on it and you would lose weight.

Protein in the diet has a distinct advantage for the reducer. To some extent, protein speeds up the body processes, enabling you to burn more food or to burn it at a slightly faster rate. If you think of food in terms of fuel, protein is like kindling—it makes the fire burn faster.

But the idea that the more protein you eat, the faster you reduce is an erroneous one. Protein contains 113 calories per ounce, the same number as carbohydrates. When more protein is taken than is needed for the body's repair work, the excess is then used as energy. And when you take more protein than you use in energy, you certainly will not reduce on it.

When protein is used for repair, the nitrogen it contains plays an extremely important part in this work. But when protein is converted into energy, the nitrogen must be excreted through the kidneys. For this reason, no one should go on a very high protein diet without his doctor's permission.

The chop and steak diet is all right as far as it goes. You need protein, and it is provided in an excellent quality. But the menu is inadequate, for it fails to supply sufficient amounts of the vitamins A, B and C. It is also deficient in the minerals, calcium and phosphorus. To balance this menu, you would have to add a glass of skim milk to the luncheon and dinner menus, more green vegetables, menus for minerals and bulk, and, in addition, supplement the daily diet with one A, B, C vitamin concentrate.

Here is a better version of the chop and steak diet:

High Protein Diet—Breakfast	Calories
Orange juice, 1-2 glass	55
Scrambled egg (with 2 tsp. milk scrambled in double boiler without fat)	100
Toast, 1-2 slice	40
Coffee, clear	195
Luncheon
Lamb chop, broiled, 1	100
String beans, 1-2 cup	80
Skim milk, 1 glass	50
Grapefruit, 1-2	245

Dinner
Broiled tenderloin, 3 1-2 ounces trim off all fat
Stewed tomatoes
Chopped green salad
With 2 rounded tsp.
Cottage cheese
Skim milk, 1 glass
Total calories for day
The whole thing resolves itself to the principles of the adequate diet. . . A good reducing diet must supply all the essential elements, calories excepted. Assuming you are too fat, you can safely reduce. But if you take too many of your reducing calories in any one essential element, such as protein, the diet will necessarily lack some other element equally important to health.

Gay and Different

By Barbara Bell.

All sorts of clothes put the emphasis upon prettiness this spring. Look at this one, for instance. Pattern 1935-B is just as practical as a can opener, with its button-front closing, unhampering waistline and comfortable armholes. But also it's as pretty as a bright gemstone on the window sill, because it turns back at the neckline in pointed revers, has braid at the hem as well as at the neckline, and cleverly detailed sleeves.

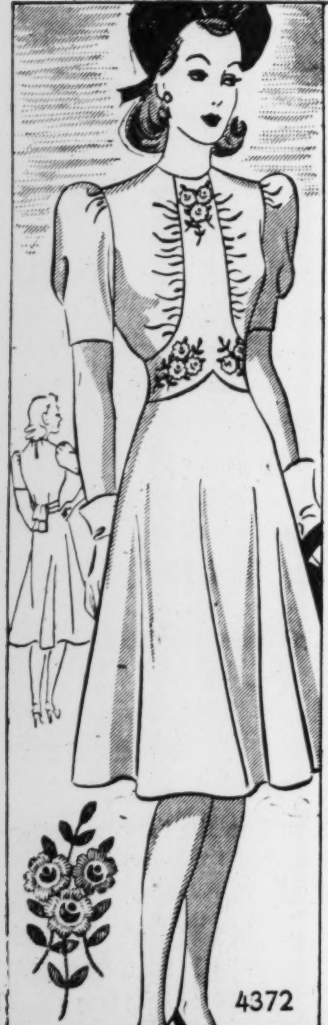

The waistline can be drawn in as slim as you please, by means of the narrow belt at the back, which disappears at the sides, and ends in a fluttery bow or with a buckle in the front. This will be especially pretty in pink and white checked gingham, green chambray, or percale printed in small red motifs, or polka dots.

Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1935-B is designed for sizes 14, 16, 18, 20; 40, and 42. Size 16 (34) requires 4 2-3 yards of 35-inch material, without nap, 4 1-2 yards of braid. Send for our New Spring Pattern Book, and choose from more than 100 smart and original designs! For afternoon and for day! For yourself and the children! You can make lovely things, so easily and inexpensively, with these patterns, each including a step-by-step sew chart to guide you.

Price of pattern 15 cents, book 15 cents. Do not send stamps. Mail orders to Barbara Bell Pattern Department, The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga.

Embroidery Adds Springlike Touch

By Lillian Mae.

If fitted-and-flared lines . . . distinctive style . . . and new fashion details are what you want, Pattern 4372 is the answer! The bright-colored flower embroidery adds a stunning and springlike touch. It's easy to do, too, for a transfer pattern and simple embroidery directions are included in Lillian Mae's helpful sewing instructor. Isn't the bodice panel attractive as it curves down and divides to form a smooth waist-girdle? The sash is looped over, bustle style, in back; the sleeves are short or three-quarter. Notice the soft side bodice gathers. If you omit the embroidery, do try the panel, girdle and sash in striking contrast.

Pattern 4372 is available in misses' and women's sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40. Size 16 takes 3 1-2 yards 39-inch fabric.

Send 15 cents in coins for this Lillian Mae pattern. Do not send stamps. Write plainly size name, address and style number.

It's smart to "sew your own." And with Lillian Mae's spring style book for expert guidance, you can have that well-dressed look always. Choose from dozens of frocks, suits, coats, home-modes pictured. See the new silhouettes—peg-top, bouffant, apron and longer-torso—shown in both sunlight and starlight styles. Sportsters, tailored and dress-up clothes for bride, career girl, hard-to-fit matron and young set, are all included. Order a copy today! Book 15 cents.

Send your order to Lillian Mae Pattern Department, The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga.

SALLY FORTH Says:

Ham Stored in Paris 7 Months Is "Gone But Not Forgotten"

• • • A VIRGINIA HAM, shipped to France last August, still reposes in a dark corner of a Paris warehouse. But its owner hopes that some day she will be able to enjoy its delectable taste. The owner is Mrs. Lucien Ragonnet, who arrived here Saturday to visit her sister, Mrs. Charles T. Hicks, at her home on Stovall boulevard. She is the wife of Lieutenant Commander Ragonnet, an assistant naval attaché to Ambassador Bullitt.

The ham, along with a great deal of the Ragonnet furniture, arrived in Paris just before the outbreak of the war, a circumstance causing the couple to reside temporarily at a hotel, where they had no need for either ham or furniture. Mrs. Ragonnet landed in the States on February 26, after having been on the sea for 13 days. She sailed from Marseilles aboard the American export ship Exambian.

Despite the fact that numerous refugees were among the passengers, ship life proceeded in normal channels—even to a romance! The courtship was a whirlwind affair and they plan to be married within the next few months. Mrs. Ragonnet is among the passengers invited to be present for the wedding.

The most exciting event of the voyage, however, occurred during rough weather one morning about 3 o'clock. The boat struck, an uncharted object with such force that it shuddered from bow to stern. It was most upsetting for the passengers until they learned from the captain that the object was a whale!

Mrs. Ragonnet says that she found Paris so delightful that she hopes to be able to return at some not far distant date. Commander Ragonnet travels about a great deal, and Mrs. Ragonnet's reason for coming back to her native land is to leave him free to carry on his duties. A wife, she says, is something of a responsibility in wartime.

Paris has become a REAL French city at last, for there is a dearth of visitors and tourists, according to Mrs. Ragonnet. The gay night spots, so dear to foreign tourists, close early due to the nightly blackouts. As one Frenchman laughingly told her, he is now getting enough sleep for the first time in 20 years!

He no longer has to squire visiting friends until the wee sma' hours of the morning.

Mrs. Ragonnet thinks the French people exceptionally charming, pleasant and hospitable. Paris is quite gay, she says, and new shops continue to open, with business proceeding in a fairly normal way. And, of course, the world's most famous fashion establishments have continued their brilliant showings.

Tailored clothes were the mode of the moment when she left, with amusing phosphorescent flowers being worn on shoulders and in lapels to avoid unnecessary collisions among pedestrians at night. Though fashions in clothes, daily habits, etc., may have changed a trifle, the FOOD in Paris remains the best in the whole world!

Mrs. Ragonnet brought her car over with her and drove it to Washington, D. C., taking the train from there to Atlanta. Mr. Hicks went to Washington and brought the car here. He was constantly stopped and asked questions all the way home. The curious were interested in the foreign license plates and the blue headlights. The latter are no novelty in Europe, however, for they have become a compulsory precaution for night driving.

Mrs. Ragonnet is now enjoying a much needed rest due to her strenuous trip over, but numerous parties are being planned in her honor and will be given sometime later.

• • • AN ANNOUNCEMENT of particular interest to Atlantans is that of the engagement of Charles Dana Jr., of New York, to Marion C. Turrell, also of New York, which has just been revealed by the bride-elect's mother, Mrs. Henry K. L'Hommedieu, of 60 Gramercy Park, New York. Charles, you know, is the son of the former Agnes Laddson, of this city, and a nephew of Mrs. Frank Adair.

The announcement, made in the Monday issue of the New York Herald Tribune, was as follows: "Mrs. Henry K. L'Hommedieu, of 60 Gramercy Park, New York, announces the engagement of her daughter, Miss Marion C. Turrell, to Charles A. Dana Jr., son of Mrs. A. Laddson Dana, of Bernardsville, N. J., and Charles A. Dana, of New York.

"Miss Turrell's father is Frederick F. Turrell, of New York. She attended Miss Porter's School in Farmington, Conn., and the Grand Central Art School. "Mr. Dana was graduated from St. Paul's School, Concord, N. H., and attended Princeton University. He is with the Manufacturers Trust Company and is a member of the Princeton, Racquet and Tennis, and the Somerset Hills Golf Club, of Bernardsville. He is a brother of Mrs. Morgan Cowperthwaite, the former Miss Agnes L. Dana, whose marriage took place last June.

"The wedding is planned to take place in New York in May, with only the families and a few intimate friends present."

popular Louisa Robert is having a grand time in West Palm Beach, Louisa, you know, left last week to visit Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wilson, and during her stay she has been honored at a series of interesting parties. In the letters that drift homeward she relates that she has spent a great deal of time indulging in her favorite sports, golf and swimming.

The attractive belle plans to leave today for Miami, where she will spend a week as the guest of Frances Weinman Latimer at the home taken for the season on Miami Beach by the latter's mother, Mrs. W. J. Weinman.

As for Louisa's destination after her visit to Frances expires, Sally cannot tell, but she says so many of her friends in Miami, it is doubtful if she will make an appearance in Atlanta for many weeks to come.

• • • EVEN IF you're one of those inhibited persons with a perversion for masquerade parties, you simply couldn't resist the clever invitations sent out by the members of the O. B. X. sorority to their masquerade Saturday evening. Read for yourself: "To a masquerade party, our friends we invite, On the Sixteenth of March—from nine till midnight: It's to be at the Amusey—remember with care, And the O. B. X. sisters will welcome you there. Wear your niftiest costume. (If such things you shun, Of course you don't have to, but costumes are fun!)"

The "bid" are in the form of a white folder printed in purple ink, the sorority colors. On the outside is an attractive drawing of a masked girl and boy beneath O. B. X. printed in large purple letters. Down one side is the word masquerade, also printed in purple. If the invitations are any indication of the party itself, then it's going to be grand fun!

Studio Club Holds Exhibit

An enjoyable affair of yesterday was the open house at the Studio Club on Ellis street with Mr. and Mrs. Harold Bush-Brown, Miss Bertha Nix and George Ramey acting as hosts and hostesses.

Featuring the affair was an exhibition of 50 pencil sketches by Paul Heffernon, of Georgia Tech's architectural department. The pictures present interesting scenes in France, Germany, Italy, Greece and Russia and were made during Mr. Heffernon's stay in Europe as winner of the coveted Paris prize in architecture in 1935.

In the recent tri-county exhibit at the High Museum Mr. Heffernon was awarded first prize in the graphic medium on a sketch entitled "Moscow" which was exhibited. After the display at the Studio Club, which will continue until March 27 and with a display on Sunday, the picture will be sent to New York for display at the Beaux Arts Institute of Design.

At the affair Mrs. Waldo Oettinger discussed the Horowitz program.

Mrs. C. M. McClung, of Knoxville, Tennessee.

Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Beers are vacationing at Fort Lauderdale, Florida.

Mrs. Charles Tuller left yesterday for Oklahoma City, where she will attend the marriage of her brother, Lewis J. Moorman Jr., to Miss Betty Slick on March 19.

William B. Reese is in Bermuda, where he will participate in the annual Bermuda tennis championships.

Mr. and Mrs. Claude M. Frederick are in Marshallville to attend the camelia show on Friday.

C. V. Day, of Cartersville, is recovering from an operation at the Ponce de Leon infirmary.

Better Box Office Appeal Seen In Current Theater Program

Some Bills To Change Today, Cutting Week a Day Short.

By LEE ROGERS,

Motion Picture Editor.

Better box office appeal, even if the subject matter probably won't excel the material of last week, is to be found in the movies opening today and tomorrow—as some of the local theater managers cut the week short by beginning new programs on Thursday instead of the customary Friday.

Most people last week, it seems, were like ourselves—until we saw the films. They thought the movies possibly were not up to their standard of entertainment. Those who saw them know otherwise, though, for plenty of amusement was in each. But, be that as it may, the new shows look very attractive.

The daring "A Child Is Born," at the Capitol, opened yesterday with Geraldine Fitzgerald, the starlet who won stardom last year, in the lead. Then at the Paramount tomorrow, "Of Mice and Men," the movie version of John Steinbeck's study of present-day social problems, opens with Lon Chaney Jr. in his first big role.

Joan Bennett, the girl who turned brunette to out Lamarr Hunt, should prove sufficient to flock them into the Grand. Her current "House Across the Bay" opens there tomorrow. Then the little Texas girl who sang her way from Broadway to the movies with the song "My Heart Belongs to Daddy," opens in her first movie at the Fox today. She is Mary Martin in the film "The Great Victor Herbert."

The exception among last week's shows is "Shop Around the Corner," the one we picked as best last week. It has been held by the Rialto for another week. Margaret Sullivan and James Stewart star.

The Roxy opens today with a new band on the stage. Jack Teagarden is the maestro and he offers a variety show.

Capitol

"A Child Is Born," starring Geraldine Fitzgerald, Jeffrey Lynn, Gale Page and Gladys George, is the current feature at the Capitol theater. It will continue through Saturday.

Starting Sunday on the stage, the Capitol management has secured the Major Bowes All-Girl Revue, which is said to be the most entertaining unit that the major has yet sent on the road. Twenty-five good-looking girls are featured in this revue and these 25 girls represent the outstanding winners of over 268 broadcasts. A variety of entertainment will be provided, which should prove pleasing to all.

On the screen, starting Sunday, the Capitol offers a well-known Atlanta favorite screen star, William (Hopalong Cassidy) Boyd in his very latest western hit, "Santa Fe March."

Loew's

Highly emotional drama and honest-to-goodness thrills are in store for filmgoers when they witness Walter Wanger's new film production, "The House Across the Bay," which opens at Loew's tomorrow, with George Raft and Joan Bennett heading an imposing cast of Hollywood top-notchers.

Miss Bennett, in a word, looking more ravishing than ever, plays a straight dramatic role—and she does it stirring and brilliantly. In addition, the star, with the brunet tresses does her first dancing on the screen—a new type of rumba. As for George Raft, his impersonation of Steve Larwitz, a latter-day gentleman of means and ambitions, is as deft as it is clever. Raft knows how to fill his screen characterizations with lifelike qualities, with punch and drama, with humor and imagination.

Fox

A cast headed by such celebrities as Allan Jones, Mary Martin and Walter Connolly, 28 of the unforgettable melodies written by Victor Herbert, and a rousing romance of the show world of the early 1900's will be on the bill of fare at the Fox theater, starting today. It is the new musical drama, "The Great Victor Herbert."

Miss Martin, as the young girl in the story, comes to storied New York with her only assets uncommon good looks, a fine singing voice and a spirited determination to make a name for herself on Broadway. Her lucky day comes when she meets Herbert's star, Jones, who falls in love with her, makes her his wife and later his stage partner.

"The Great Victor Herbert" then traces the couple's dramatic experiences, over which Herbert, in the person of Connolly, casts a long shadow. Their struggle to stay in the picture's face, their efforts to prevent their marriage from becoming "just another Count on Penetro.

Broadway affair" and their campaign to make another star of their talented daughter form a fast-paced backstage story.

Miss Martin, who now makes her film debut, only needed one try to make her name famous on Broadway—and throughout the entire country for that matter! Her singing of "My Heart Belongs to Daddy" in the musical comedy, "Leave It to Me," did the trick.

Another newcomer who will be seen for the first time in "The Great Victor Herbert" is Fox's sensational new singing discovery, 14-year-old Susanna Foster. Others figuring importantly in the story are Lee Bowman and Judith Barrett.

Some of Victor Herbert's best-remembered songs—about two dozen of them—intersperse the story. Among them are such all-around favorites as "A Kiss in the Dark," "Ah, Sweet Mystery of Life," "Kiss Me Again" and "I'm Falling in Love With Someone."

Paramount

No one who read the book when it was first published, ever expected to see John Steinbeck's "Of Mice and Men" appear as a film. It was too daring a subject, treated with a stark reality that was unheard of in films. And yet a film version, true to the very spirit of Steinbeck's first novel, opens tomorrow at the Paramount theater.

Specifically, the story is of an abiding friendship between two of these homeless, friendless men—Lennie, huge, hulking and not too bright, and George, small, alert, and the protector of his large companion. Their fellow travelers are a motley crew, cast with a consummate skill by Milestone.

Betty Field, a rising star who has played in "What a Life," appears as the puzzled, unhappy wife of the ranch owner's son, Burgess Meredith, as "George," the protector of "Lennie," has topped all of his previous stage and screen characterizations with the realism he gives this role, and

Rialto

Atlanta so liked "The Shop Around the Corner" that Manager Murray has decided to hold it at the Rialto for a second week, beginning tomorrow.

"The Shop Around the Corner" is a heart-moving romantic comedy, with James Stewart and Margaret Sullivan in the principal roles. It is an Ernst Lubitsch production for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and has been hailed by most viewers as probably the best example of that particular directorial touch of genius which marks Lubitsch—a touch which brings human sympathy so close to comedy that the story proves just the kind of thing that happens to any of us, any time.

In addition to the two stars, the cast includes such favorites as Frank Morgan, Joseph Schildkraut, Sara Haden, Inez Courtney, and many others.

Cameo

Thundering hoofs and roaring six-guns take over at the Cameo theater tomorrow and Saturday as "Bullets for Rustlers" gallop across the screen. Charles Starrett comes through with another of his smash portrayals in his new film with Lorna Gray and the "Sons of the Pioneers" again provide a melodious background for the adventure-filled saga of the old west.

"King of Kings"

Because of the tremendous success of the revival of the great religious motion picture, "King of Kings," last Easter, it is being shown even more widely this Holy Week, March 18-22. "The King of Kings" will be presented in Atlanta each morning at the Fox theater, and the showing is being sponsored by the Atlanta Christian Council.

The role of The Christ is played by H. B. Warner. Other stars still holding their own in Hollywood are Joseph Schildkraut, May Robinson, and William Boyd. Some 530 stars and feature players and more than 4,500 extras took part in this gigantic production which DeMille directed. He refused to allow the spoken word of man to mar the conception millions might have of Christ's voice, therefore supplanted words with beautiful music, blending it with every mood portrayed on the screen.

Roxy

Jack Teagarden, "The Troubadour of the Trombone," and his orchestra will begin a four-day engagement at the Roxy theater today.

Teagarden, one of the most famous trombonists in modern musical annals, is among the most recent arrivals to the "Name" band division. Having for years been acknowledged as one of the outstanding individual stars with many "hit" orchestras, Jack has seemingly imparted his experience and technique to his entire company, the result being a stellar aggregation.

Featured with Teagarden is Kitty Kallen, pretty vocalist. Also on the program with Jack Teagarden and his orchestra are: Bea Howell, "The Human Candid Camera"; Catherine Westfield & Company; Buster West, comedian, and Lucille Page, who dances.

The screen program featured with this stage program is "Danger Flight," with John Trent and Marjorie Reynolds.

Lasky To Film Story on Life of Sergeant York

HOLLYWOOD, March 13.—(UP)—Veteran Producer Jesse L. Lasky completed arrangements today for filming a picture on the life of Sergeant Alvin C. York, World War hero who won a congressional medal, the French Croix de Guerre and other decorations.

A native of the Tennessee mountain section, York was credited with capturing single-handed a battalion of 132 German machine gunners and bringing them in to American lines.

Third Term Supporters Acclaim President's New Hampshire Victory.

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, March 13.—President Roosevelt's sweep of the first of the state preferential primaries in New Hampshire yesterday seems certain to give impetus to the third-term draft movement now actively under way in his behalf.

The results have a certain affirmative significance, in that they are looked upon as the forerunner of what may be expected in other primaries between now and the date of the Democratic national convention.

The one-sided victory rolled up by the slate of Roosevelt delegates over the opposition of others committed either to Vice President Garner or Postmaster General Farley is designed to give positive encouragement to third-term backers.

Already New Deal backers of Mr. Roosevelt are claiming that his re-nomination at Chicago cannot be prevented unless he takes some clear-cut stand to the contrary. Under New Hampshire law, the delegation pledged to President Roosevelt, will continue for him until and unless it is formally released.

Woman's Greatest Adventure Theme Of Capitol Drama

(By R. E. Viewer)

In a year that has seen the Warner Bros. Studio produce such outstanding screen entertainment as "The Old Maid," "Dark Victory," "Confessions of a Nazi Spy," and "Juarez," this year has been a year of triumph for the studio.

The demonstration of the truth of that statement is the new "famous picture," "A Child Is Born," which opened yesterday at the Capitol Theater and which will be presented through Saturday with a cast headed by Geraldine Fitzgerald, Jeffrey Lynn, Gladys George, Gale Page, Spring Byington and Johnnie Davis.

It seems ridiculous that the rich vein of drama, pathos and comedy that is provided by so important an event as the birth of a human being has never before been so thoroughly mined, but such is the fact, and that is why "A Child Is Born" can be regarded as a sort of "Grand Hotel" of the maternity wards, for it is a skillful weaving together of the individual stories of all the patients into one intensely human photoplay.

Judging from the large audience which was in attendance when this reviewer saw the picture it would seem that "A Child Is Born" could easily have played a week, or more; however, the Capitol's policy would not permit this.—(Adv.)

The demonstration of the truth of that statement is the new "famous picture," "A Child Is Born," which opened yesterday at the Capitol Theater and which will be presented through Saturday with a cast headed by Geraldine Fitzgerald, Jeffrey Lynn, Gladys George, Gale Page, Spring Byington and Johnnie Davis.

It seems ridiculous that the rich vein of drama, pathos and comedy that is provided by so important an event as the birth of a human being has never before been so thoroughly mined, but such is the fact, and that is why "A Child Is Born" can be regarded as a sort of "Grand Hotel" of the maternity wards, for it is a skillful weaving together of the individual stories of all the patients into one intensely human photoplay.

Judging from the large audience which was in attendance when this reviewer saw the picture it would seem that "A Child Is Born" could easily have played a week, or more; however, the Capitol's policy would not permit this.—(Adv.)

DIVORCE DECREE GRANTED GINGER

Actress Testifies That Lew Ayres Deserted Her in May, 1936.

(Picture on Page 14) LOS ANGELES, March 13.—(AP) Screen Actress Ginger Rogers was granted an interlocutory decree of divorce today after she testified Lew Ayres deserted her May 4, 1936.

Her mother, Mrs. Lela Rogers, was her corroborating witness. The hearing took but a few minutes.

Ayres made no appearance and Superior Judge Clement L. Shinn granted the decree by default. Miss Rogers sued under her married name of Virginia M. Ayer and named the defendant as Frederick Ayer. They were married here November 14, 1934.

Hafey's Failure To Report Hampers Cracker Infield Drills

Call in The Game

by Jack Troy

Hoodoo SAVANNAH, Ga., March 13.—Marshall Mauldin, starting his fourth season as a Cracker, has high hopes of overcoming whatever jinx it is that has kept him from hitting .300 since he has played in Atlanta.

You couldn't very well say that the pitching has jinxed him, because he led the league the year he played with Knoxville. He had a batting average of .378 and the Crackers signed him after he was made a free agent.

Pitching didn't jinx him when he was in the Texas league and he hit pretty well the short time he was with the Chicago White Sox.

Since he led the Southern league, however, Mauldin's batting average has been below that of the average outfielder.

And there doesn't seem to be much he can do about it. Manager Paul Richards has experimented extensively with Mauldin. He has changed his stance. He has had him try hitting strictly to right field.

Last spring, Mauldin hit to right field the entire spring and he seemed to improve greatly in his hitting at one stretch during the regular season.

Mauldin's average rose to .348. Then he was hurt. And after he returned to the lineup, Mauldin went to bat 60 times and got only three hits.

The old hoodoo had him again.

Home-Town Jinx? Marshall may be caught in the clutches of the home-town jinx. And yet it is difficult to believe that. Because his fielding always has been outstanding at Ponce de Leon.

Mauldin changed overnight from a high average batter to just an average batter.

When he came to Atlanta, drives that used to shoot past third basemen and fall between outfielders went right at them.

He became such a steady left-field hitter that Southern league teams bunched the defense to the left. They'd move the shortstop and third baseman over and the left fielder would play along the line.

They'd pitch Mauldin in close and invariably he'd hit according to the way the defense was set.

That was why Manager Richards had him hitting to right all last spring.

And for a while the scheme worked. When the opposition played Mauldin as they had been accustomed to playing him in the past, he crossed them up by hitting to other fields.

But after he was hurt last season he dropped right back into his old style and again teams bunched their defense to the left.

Marshall, 25 years old, has played eight years of baseball. And only in the three full seasons with Atlanta has his batting average been below the average.

Keeps Him Down Big league scouts were hot on Mauldin's trail after he had his big year with Knoxville. The Crackers outbid several clubs for his services.

Equipped with a strong throwing arm, and a far-ranging outfielder with plenty of speed, Mauldin seemed a cinch to return to the big leagues.

And then his batting fell apart. Scouts grew cold. Mauldin still could go back to the big show. But it would take a robust batting average to interest the scouts again.

His is a strange case. He doesn't apparently have a batting weakness. And he isn't strictly a left-field hitter. He proved that at Knoxville and other places. And he proved it again when he was going so good last year.

Should Be Cinch Because of his undoubted defensive ability, Mauldin should be a cinch to win the center-field berth on the Crackers.

But he is not exactly a cinch, because several of the other outfield prospects look like more powerful hitters.

Suydam, Marshall and Griffin, none of them the fielding equal of Mauldin, hit for more distance.

It isn't really a question of distance in Marshall's case, however. If he can have a year when the hits fall safely again and the opposition can't tell where to play him, it won't matter if he hits homers or singles. Just so he hits.

NOOK'S BATTING PLEASES GILBERT

Caldwell Already Sold on Pitching Hopefuls; Lookouts Report Today.

SANFORD, Fla., March 13.—(P)—Manager Larry Gilbert, of the Nashville Vols, watched, and was pleased with, the performance today of John Nook, new outfield addition to the club.

Nook, who hit .382 for Amarillo, Texas, last season, was freed recently from the Tiger chain, and reported to the Nashville club today.

Gautreaux Heaviest

CHICK PROBLEM. WAUCHULA, Fla., March 13.—(P)—Manager Truck Hannah, of the Memphis Chicks, paid particular attention today to one of his heaviest problems—that of reducing overweight figure for behind-the-plate duties.

Gautreaux was put through some strenuous exercises of chasing bunts under Hannah's watchful eye.

The veteran Allyn Stout, right-handed pitcher, was in uniform for the first time today and reported himself ready for hard work.

Smokie Hurlers

Look Good.

VALDOSTA, Ga., March 13.—(P)—Neil Caldwell, manager of the Knoxville Smokies, has seen his pitching hopefuls in action only four days but he indicated today he's already sold on a few of them.

"Some of the pitchers are showing improved form and indicate they should be in good shape by the time our exhibition schedle opens," he declared.

Lookout Batterymen

Report Today.

DELAND, Fla., March 13.—(P)—The Chattanooga battery corps reports tomorrow to Manager Ki Ki Cuyler to open spring training for the champion Southern association club.

Four of the six expected to carry the pitching burden are reported ready for the first workout. They are Crop Polli, Stew Bolen and Ted Pritchett, of the 1939 team, and Red Van Fleet, acquired during the winter from Seattle. Lena Stiles and Ken Ashe, also bought during the winter, have not signed their contracts.

Kirby Battles Vare In Today's Round

Jameson and Cothran Clash in Other Semi-Final; Dot Practices Her Swing.

By DOT KIRBY.

BELLEVUE BILTMORE, March 13.—I have wound up this far in the tournament by placing myself in the same spot as last year—having to play Glenna Collett Vare in the round tomorrow.

Of course, I didn't meet her last year until the finals, but the idea is the same. She won from Naomi Copic without any hesitation by 6 and 5. Glenna is going to be hard to beat for a lot of reasons. This being her home course she naturally knows it well, and at the same time she is hitting the ball right in the middle. As I see it her only fault is that every now and then she quick-hooks and that causes a little trouble, but she makes up for this by the way she throws those chips and puts at the cup.

PRACTICE HELPS. The match I had with Mrs. Williams today left me rather uncertain as to how I would be hitting my shots against Glenna, so I set out for the practice tee this afternoon to try and get the kinks out of the swing. I believe I hit on some of the trouble, for when I quit at the end of an hour and a half the ball was going much better.

My opponent for today was from California, and I was asking her about the Pebble Beach course where the ladies' national is to be held this year. She thinks the course is one of the finest. It runs right along the ocean and naturally this makes it bad on account of the wind, and then, too, if the shot is off line, into the ocean you go.

However, that isn't until September and that is a long time off. To get back to the ever-present, in the other semi-final match we find Betty Jameson and Jane Cothran. Jane seems to be doing all right with her new overlapping grip she took to last week. She has been winning right along with it.

SCORING IS HIGH. It's a funny thing, but it doesn't seem that anybody has done any remarkable scoring this week, and the only thing I can figure out to account for it is that there has been a very stiff wind all the time. My face and arms have taken an awful beating from this sun, too. However, you won't hear me complaining about the warm weather, for I have had quite enough of the winter wind and everything that goes with it.

All of the ball players on the Brooklyn ball club are staying here at the hotel and quite a few of them have been out every morning watching the matches. Wes Farrell is here, and as you know, he is golf champion among the ball players. I haven't gotten out to see any of the games that Brooklyn has played yet, but I hope to before we get away.

Dodd Admits He's Interested In Vandy Job

Tech Backfield Coach Says No Mention Made of Salary.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., March 13.—(P)—Bobby Dodd, backfield coach at Georgia Tech, said tonight he was "definitely interested" in the Vanderbilt University football coaching vacancy created by the resignation of Ray Morrison.

After a two-hour informal interview with Dean C. M. Sarra's committee on athletics, the youthful former University of Tennessee gridiron star told newsmen:

"I enjoyed the interview very much. While this is not by any means an ideal coaching setup it isn't nearly as bad as it had been pictured to me. I see no reason why it wouldn't be a very good spot. I am definitely interested."

Dodd said—and the statement was corroborated by Vandy officials—that no mention was made of salary, contract or other pertinent business items at the conference.

"We merely sat around and talked," he said. "They told me how they worked things here; I told them how we did it at Tech."

Sarra said there were "two or three more interviews" scheduled and then "we will get down to business."

"This means," he explained, "that if the committee on recommendations picks out two or three outstanding men these will have to be brought back for additional interviews to discuss terms."

Mailho Drew Most Walks Last Season

Alf Anderson Vindicates Confidence Lew Hardage Placed in Him.

Cracker Crumbs: Lew Hardage, ex-Vandy, Oklahoma and Florida grid and baseball coach, is happy that his judgment has been vindicated. When Alf Anderson completed college he tried to interest Jacksonville in the Georgia shortstopper, saying he was as good as Auburn's Billy Hitchcock. No sale.

No one seemed to want him, Lew says, and he couldn't figure why. Alf had come up the hard way, through the semi-pros and small minor leagues. Lew is doing verbal handstands because he didn't feel he could be that wrong on a young ball player. He believes Alf will be a great ball player ere he's through.

Cracker Curiosities: Emil Mailho, new Cracker field captain, drew more walks than anyone in the league last year. He got most of them because of that knack of his for fouling off pitch after pitch. It drives the flingers crazy. P. S.—He can hit, too, or did you know?

Two of the best arms in baseball will be on display before the Ponce throngs this year. Do you remember that rifle-like whop of Tom Hafey's? And "Doc" Smith is the only catcher here in years who threw out would-be base stealers by yards instead of inches.

Paul Richards takes up a lot of the slack in the hitting department while slow starters like Burge are getting their eye on the pellet. "Slug" is a great spring hitter. Most of his homers come in the opening two months. Remember that smash over the top right center sign for a homer last spring. A real wallop for a right hander.

Hafey Has Already Signed His Contract

Tom Drake Injures Arm; Rookie Marshall To Start in Center Saturday.

By JACK TROY.

SAVANNAH, Ga., March 13.—Another day has passed in the training camp of the Crackers and still no Tom Hafey.

The big third sacker told Emil Mailho as Emil was leaving Berkeley, Cal., that he would take a train in time to reach here for opening day.

Hafey was due last Monday. And unless he shows up tomorrow or the next day, he will go into the first exhibition—against Baltimore on Saturday—without practice.

NO WORD RECEIVED. No word has been received from the big fellow who hit 24 homers to lead the league with Knoxville two seasons ago. He is signed up. So there's no hitch there.

If and when Hafey finally gets here the Cracker infield will begin functioning as a unit. Anderson, Ryan and Burge are presenting a nifty combine. Ryan looks better all the time.

Big John Griffin and Willard Marshall continued to pound the ball from county to county today. Both are exceptional rookie outfielders.

Jack Suydam also hits the baseball with a lot of power. He needs a little defensive polish and he is getting plenty of fielding practice each day.

WEATHER GREAT. The weather is a great aid. The squad right now is in excellent physical condition, following 10 days of hard work.

There may be stronger nines in the Southern league when the bell rings on April 11, but there hardly will be a better conditioned team than the Crackers.

There is no lost motion in the long daily drills.

Marshall will play center field Saturday. Manager Richards is greatly impressed with his hitting and wants to get a line on his fielding.

Drake 'Overworks' Arm in Training.

SAVANNAH, Ga., March 13.—Tom Drake, one of the Crackers' ace right-handers, had to go to a doctor today about his arm.

Drake, one of the hardest workers in camp, came up with an elbow injury. The arm was swollen almost twice its normal size.

The doctor's report indicates he will have to take it easy for a while.

There seems to be nothing seriously wrong with Drake's arm. He simply has been overdoing things in training.

Serafin and Allen Win Medal Honor

ST. AUGUSTINE, Fla., March 13.—(P)—Dovetailing their shots perfectly, Felix Serafin, Scranton, Pa., professional, and his amateur partner, Frank Allan, of West Pittston, Pa., shot a brilliant 129 today to win medalist honors in the 36-hole qualifying round of the national winter amateur-professional match play golf tournament here.

Bugging 13 birdies and adding an eagle on the last hole, the medalist team clipped 15 strokes from par in the best-ball test and won one of the 19 places in the championship division at stake today. They had rounds of 66 and 63.

Sharp Shootin'

AL SHARP

A rainy, cold day in March is not a good time to write about golf for those who do not play the game. However, a statement made by Fred Corcoran, tournament manager for the Professional Golfers' Association, got us on the subject prematurely.

We were talking to the genial Freddie at the Thomasville Open. He doesn't play much, although he travels the circuit with the pros every year.

The reason was a logical one. "Too much perfection. I see so much perfection that I don't have any urge to play." That was the way Freddie put it. And I'm afraid that is the reason why more persons don't take up the game.

Those who don't play read about the tournament players smashing par into little bits. If they do decide to try the game, they can't come near that perfection. It is discouraging. Their friends don't come close, either. Why, Smith has been playing for three years and he can't shoot under 90. That's more discouraging.

What they don't realize is that the 90-shooters have just as much fun—more, I believe—than the low scorers. Companionship and competition are the keynotes of golf. Whether that means firing a 91 to beat your friend, 1 up, or whether it means shooting a 5 under par 67 to win a tournament, it's still competition.

Sure, the low scorers attract the galleries. So do the Yanks. But the sandlot ball player gets more fun out of hitting a double to score the winning run at the end of the ninth than he does watching an average game.

Like any other game, golf is fun. It would have to be to attract millions of 90-shooters. They don't come back because they had fine scores.

Golf remains fun as long as it stays short of the perfection point—far short.

In too many cases, golf changes from pleasure to work when a fellow starts shooting to break 70.

So the 90-shooters do have an advantage. They can enjoy the championship and competition and play as they please.

That is something.

TEXAS QUINTETS LOSE IN UPSETS

KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 13. (AP)—A tournament record was established and two favored Texas teams eliminated in today's opening games of the second round in the third annual national intercollegiate basketball tournament.

Therman (Blackie) Blackledge, forward for Delta State College of Cleveland, Miss., popped in 32 points as he helped defeat Superior, Wis., Teachers, 57 to 40. He cracked the mark of 28 set last year by Gordon Rhoades, of Glenview, W. Va., State.

In the preceding game, Tommy Conner, a stubby forward for Hamline University, potted 24 points against a rusty Kansas Wesleyan aggregation that bowed out of the meet, 61 to 50. Conner's efforts surpassed the previous 1940 scoring mark of 23 hung up Monday by Robert Carpenter, of East Texas State.

Rival Texas schools were eliminated in the day's first two games. West Texas State's "world's tallest team" was ousted by Tarkio, Mo., College, 50 to 49. Carpenter was held to four points today by Larry Uhlenhop, of Kansas State Teachers, of Pittsburg, and the Kansans won, 55 to 33.

In the roughest game of the tournament San Antonio, Tex., State topped Appalachian State, of Boone, N. C., 48 to 46.

Texas Wesleyan, playing without its injured Jack Thornton, nosed out the Southeastern State five from Durant, Okla., 40 to 39, in a battle that had the two teams within a point of each other throughout the final five minutes.

NEW YORK, March 13.—(UP)—Duquesne and Colorado tonight rolled into the finals of the third annual metropolitan invitation

400 WILL BOWL HERE SATURDAY IN BIG TOURNNEY

Entry List Open Right Up to Bowling Time; No Entry Fee.

A new world's record entry list for a one-day bowling tournament was established Wednesday evening as 23 couples filed entries for the eighth annual staging of the Atlanta Constitution "St. Patrick's Day" doubles bowling tournament and boosted the total number of doubles teams signed to the record mark of 173 couples that are registered for this event that will be staged on three separate bowling centers this Saturday. The previous record, established in this tournament last year, was 172 couples or a total of 344 men and women.

The stage is set for one of the most interesting bowling contests that has ever been staged in Atlanta in a single day, with 346 men and women already signed to bowl. Officials predict an entry of 200 couples for the contest as interest soars to a new record peak.

The downtown Blick's Bowling Center and the uptown Lucky Strike alleys will be the sites for both the handicap and non-league divisions of the tourney. The Bowling Palace, at Briarcliff Plaza, will have a number of non-league bowlers participating for special awards in this event.

Gold Medals. The beautiful gold medals, now on display at Claude S. Bennett's jewelry store, will be awarded the winning teams in the separate men's and women's events of the handicap and the non-league divisions, after the tournament draws to a close Saturday evening at the downtown center.

With the record number of participants already registered, and others seeking partners, so that they will be ready to bowl Saturday, the event is scheduled to get off to a big start at 11 o'clock in the morning when the first block of entries start firing away at the little pins. Other groups will start at 1:30, 3:30, 5:30, 7:30, 9:30, 11:30, 1:30, 3:30, 5:30, 7:30, 9:30, 11:30.

The entry list will remain open right up to game time Saturday so that all men and women may have opportunity of registering for the bowing.

Five games are to be bowled, with handicaps being added to your scores. No entry fee other than the cost of the five games scheduled will be charged.

The Gulf Oil league contributed entries from C. H. Hartness, Ed J. R. Timmerman, L. C. R. Deck, W. N. Gouge and D. A. Ratliff and F. R. Lawrence. The National Association of Cost Accountants fielded entries from R. L. Getzen and Roy Tinsley and Bill Hargrave and Julian Bass.

CITY LEAGUE ENTRIES. The Ladies' City league fielded entry for four couples that include Dot Keeney and Mrs. H. A. Calahan, Patsy Maher and Flossie Bolland, Emily Kimbro and Katie Groover and Mary Sorrow and Vernon Hughes.

Other entries, filed Wednesday included Albert Pirkle and Bob Langdon, who have bowled in the tournament every year under the Georgia Power Company colors; Preston Mason and Bob Moore, Frank Reeves and Bill Maness, Ed Walker and Donald Thacker, Vernon Brown and Clyde Cannon, L. Johnson and B. Johnson, R. Sanders and F. Bentley, J. Carr and R. Sipple, M. Freeman and R. Gruidel, L. Smith and J. Smith, P. Moran and F. Weisner, R. and W. Calhoun, A. and R. C. Wilkes and L. W. Moore and Bob Jenkins.

With 12 hours of continuous bowling predicted for Saturday, with scores that are expected to hit a new high and a new world's record entry list already established, bowlers are urged to file entry for a morning, afternoon or evening of really topflight tournament competition with nothing risked but the price that you ordinarily pay for the five games of practice bowling.

MAGILL RALLIES TO BEAT GRIFFIN

Dan Meets Besser in Table Tennis Semi-Final Friday.

Score another sports victory for the Bulldogs over the Yellow Jackets. Dan Magill, pride of the Red and Black, Wednesday night in the Georgia state table tennis tournament defeated Ray Griffin, Jacket champion, 14-21, 21-8, 21-10, 21-9, to enter the semi-finals.

Griffin's attack, which had spectators gasping in the first game, seemed to bog down after the initial victory. Magill pulled everything out of the bag in those last three games. He chopped, cut and slammed the ball. Magill meets Herbert in the semi-finals Friday night preceding the final event.

Champ Reese, former city champion, entered the semi-finals by defeating Earl Saville in three straight games, 21-16, 21-12, 21-10. Jonas Mitchell beat Johnny Doyle, 21-16, 22-20 in a junior singles match that proved one of the best of the night. Trailing at the last of the second game, Mitchell came through with several almost impossible shots to wind up the match.

Charles Cover entered the finals of the boys' division by beating Jimmy Palmer, 21-7, 21-18. He will meet John Edwards for the title Friday night.

Marian Shropshire swept through the women's ranks in one evening as she defeated Mary Grainger, Evangeline McKennan and Jean Anstrom in successive matches to enter the finals against Mrs. Ragland Dobbins. Miss Shropshire ran through her matches against her first two opponents easily, but found trouble in Jean Anstrom.

Nelson to Tailback

Tide Star Shifted Because of Graduation of Boswell, Mosley... Derby Field Largest Since '31... 11 Auburn Athletes Average Over 90.

By JOHNNY BRADBERRY. Dixie Sports Shots: Frank Thomas has shifted Jimmy Nelson, sensational soph right half last year, to tailback. Reason is the graduation of Charlie Boswell and Herkey Mosley. Nelson's running is all right but he may have trouble handling the passing and punting. This year's Kentucky Derby drew 127 nominations.

The highest number since 1931 when the list was 130. Twenty Grand won it that year. Only seven fillies are nominated. And the best of these seems to be Warren Wright's Little Risk.

Around the S. E. C.: Vanderbilt will give her new coach a free rein in choosing assistants. It is reported. The rub is they won't give him much cash to choose them with. Alabama's 1934 eleven will be honored at "A" day March 23. Eleven Auburn athletes averaged above 90 for the first semester.

George Wolff, football, and Henry Mohs, swimming, were among them. Both are Atlantans. Florida's tennis team has lost but two matches in 41 starts since 1936. Washington's first baseman, the son of a Baptist minister who used to play first base for Richmond U. He has four sons and all played the same position for the same college. All were six-footers like their daddy. And all captained the team.

My Goodness: Vince DiMaggio fanned 10 of the first 12 times he was at bat for the Reds last year. Zeke Bonura has averaged nearly 125 pure batted in a season for the past six years. Scout say Jimmy Pofahl's arm looks like a pea-shooter playing in the Senator infield between such riffs wings as Cecil Travis and Jimmy Woodworth possee. Jack Sanford, Washington's first baseman, is the son of a Baptist minister who used to play first base for Richmond U. He has four sons and all played the same position for the same college. All were six-footers like their daddy. And all captained the team.

Southern League Shorts: Only the Pelicans and the Pebbles are not training away from home. Dick Bass is likely to be returned to the Lookouts by the Cubs. Chattanooga fans are hot and bothered about all the talk the Lookouts "backed into the pennant last year."

Information, please: Ki Aldridge, T. C. U.'s ex-all-American, is working at a Miami dog track. And honeymooning at the same time. Davey O'Brien and Bill Osmanski are just two of the many pro grid players who returned to school after the season.

Don't look now, but Jake Webster may beat Jarrin' John Kimbrough out of the Texas Aggie fullback job next fall. He has been going great guns in spring practice.

Racing Roundup NEW YORK, March 13.—(AP)—Betty's Bobby, the second choice, carried the H. & H. stock farm's silks to victory in the featured Florida city purse at Tropical park today.

C. E. Davidson's Gray Jack raced the mile and one-sixteenth route of the Martin Memorial handicap at Oaklawn today in 1:48 2-5 to carry off the major share of the $1,000 purse.

A second place was Professor Paul, Mrs. J. Chesney's chestnut gelding, and third was R. A. Coward's Oracles.

Gray Jack, by Jack-Across Dale, paid $9.90, $5.10 and $3.20 for his triumph over a field of six thoroughbreds.

Finnish Relief Game Unaffected by Peace TAMPA, Fla., March 13.—(AP)—The "cease firing" command in Finland will in no way interfere with the Major League All-Star game at the Plant field here Sunday.

Kenesaw M. Landis, his commissioner of baseball said today.

"The game is for Finnish relief," he said, "and now that things have turned out the way they have over there, the Finns need it more than ever. The game will be played as planned."

Fritz Orr Giant Fives Play for Club Crowns The four best basketball teams in Fritz Orr "Giant" class (the 11, 12 and 13-year-old class), will battle tomorrow night at the Fritz Orr gym, the first game beginning at 8 o'clock.

The fives have been competing all year, and the two with the best records will play for first place and the club championship. The other two teams will vie for third place. The public is invited. No admission charge will be made.

Miss Suggs Plays In Augusta Event Louise Suggs, who shot brilliant golf in the Miami Biltmore tournament, will play in the Forrester Hills tourney at Augusta next week, she announced yesterday.

Miss Suggs, 16-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Suggs, of Lithia Springs, was 3 under par for nine holes and 1 down to Patty Berg in the Miami meet.

She and Dorothy Kirby, Atlanta star, who has started a three-week tourney swing, will play in the Augusta tourney which starts Monday.

DERBY, BELMONT AND PREAKNESS DRAW BIG FIELD

Bradley Enters Another Candidate in His Bashful Duck.

By SID FEDER. NEW YORK, March 13.—(AP)—You may not believe it, from the way Bimelech is being touted from the housetops all the way between here and Louisville, but there really are a few other horses expecting to show up against big Bimelech when he goes after the "triple crown" this spring.

They've made Colonel E. R. Bradley's classy colt the shortest-priced future book favorite in history, not only for the Kentucky Derby, but for the three-crown stunt as well. Trainers of other gallopers in one or the other of the races even overlook their own hopefuls to point the finger at Black Toney's Boy.

Yet, a comparison of the lists of nominations for the Derby, the Preakness and the Belmont shows 16 owners have overcome their fears sufficiently to name a total of 19 other horses to run after the three-way three-year-old championship which has been won by only four other thoroughbreds in history. A dozen others, already among the eligibles for the Derby and Belmont, are expected to be entered as supplementary nominees for the Preakness—at $1,500 per supplementary crack, incidentally.

OTHERS CAN RUN. Even Colonel Bradley, who is lucky to have met with a fellow like Bimelech going for him, has another candidate, Bashful Duck, listed among the 20 already named for all three starts. While Bimelech is definitely the one to beat, there are several more among the 20 "owners" who have been aptly put by Dave (the Whizzer) Woods, Alf Vanderbilt's right-hand man at Pimlico and Belmont—who might make Bimelech step for it.

Tops among these is Andy K. from the Millsdale stable of M. L. Emerich and Tony Pelletieri. This little fellow had all the speed in the world as a two-year-old last year, but just couldn't run straight. He's been learning over the winbles the word is he has finally found out where he's going. He's on the list of anticipated supplementaries for the Preakness.

Among those nominated for all three are the stakes winners, C. V. Whitney's Flight Command and Mrs. H. C. Phipps' Merry Knight. Whitney also is expected to file the name of his unbeaten "mystery colt," Carrier Pigeon, for the Preakness, to complete an entry. Jock Whitney has one "Crownclade" in Gramps, but will not run his fast Florida stepper, Wolf Wolf, in the Derby.

THREE-RACE ENTRIES. The 20 named for all three affairs are Mrs. Phipps' Asp, Merry Knight and Snow Ridge; Colonel Bradley's Bimelech and Bashful Duck; Mrs. Payne Whitney's Cherry Trifle and Corydon; Mrs. John D. Hertz's Count Happy, H. O. H. Frelinghuysen's Ekwonok, C. V. Whitney's Flight Command, William Woodward's Foxblame, Mrs. Ethel V. Mars' Gallabadi, which went well at Santa Anita this winter; Harry M. Warner's Gallant Dream, J. H. Whitney's Gramps, Roy G. Martin's Kateekel, William duPont Jr.'s Maestro Sascha, W. L. Brann's Pictor, Louis B. Mayer's Sir Jeffrey, Val Crane's Sir Lancelot, and Hal Price Headley's The Rage.

Handicapped by bad weather, the Georgians haven't been able to work out much and Coach Sikes probably will have to use three pitchers against the soldiers, Bob Smith, Jack Clifton and Alex McCaskill being slated for three innings each.

DEAN ACCEPTS CUBS' SALARY OFFER-REPORT

Figure Believed To Be $10,000; Diz Will Join Mates Sunday.

DALLAS, Texas, March 13.—(AP)—The great Diz Dean, strangely mellow after a wordy holdout, accepted Chicago Cub terms today and said he would join his mates Sunday in California.

Nervous as a rookie packing for his first training camp, Dean hurried in from his nearby farm and gleefully confirmed he had reached "a happy understanding" with the Cubs and was "darn glad about the whole thing."

Of Diz wouldn't talk of such ugly matters as contracts or specific amounts, but the feeling was that he had finally descended to Owner Phil K. Wrigley's original offer of $10,000. The big right-hander had demanded $15,000—until last night.

Then, he admitted, he telephoned Clarence Rowland of the Cub staff at Avalon, Cal.

"Very fair," said Dean of Rowland. "I'm happy to sign. We both agreed to every point and I'll be with those Cubs Sunday. We agreed not to discuss the terms or anything else about the conversation."

Money Market.

NEW YORK, March 12.—(AP)—The "free" foreign exchange market was "firm" today, with the pound in the lead. The Canadian dollar had dropped below the bottom of the previous day's range, and the dollar was sold at the lowest in nearly a decade.

Sterling cancelled early losses of 6 cents to 7 cents to 10 cents to 12 cents to 14 cents to 16 cents to 18 cents to 20 cents to 22 cents to 24 cents to 26 cents to 28 cents to 30 cents to 32 cents to World futures closed 1 to 2 1/4 points down on sales of only 1,900 tons; March 56 1/2 July 55 1/2. Cuban operators gave the market a boost by offering a large lot of first-crop sugar, but the price list ended unchanged 1 point off from 17.00 cents.

Offerings of raw sugar came out slowly as sales were confined of 35,000 bags, but the market was buoyed by a large lot of futures for prompt shipment at 2.81 cents per pound an increase of 1 point in the price. The market then moved in routine fashion at 4-10 cents.

When Rebecca's Body Is Found, Max Tells His Wife That He Killed Her

By DAPHNE DU MAURIER.

SYNOPSIS.
In the south of France, where I was traveling as companion to Mrs. Van Hopper, I met Max de Winter. My own pale shyness was in contrast to his bitter brooding silence. Mrs. Van Hopper told me he was the owner of a famous estate, Manderley, which he had not occupied since the accidental death of his wife, Rebecca. Mrs. Van Hopper took ill and was confined to her bed, and I found myself spending many hours with Max; before long I was deeply in love. When Mrs. Van Hopper suddenly decided to leave, Max asked me to marry him, and took me to Manderley as his bride. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

INSTALLMENT IV.

He took my face in his hands. "How much do you love me?" he asked, his voice tortured by something I did not know. "Maxim, must I tell you...?" "I'm afraid it's too late, my darling..." he said slowly. "It's all over now. The thing's happened—the thing I've dreaded." "Maxim, what are you trying to tell me?" "Rebecca has won." "I could only think of his love for her, of how I had lost. "Her shadow has been between us all the time—" he went on. "She knew that this would happen."

"What are you saying?" "They sent a diver down. He found another boat—" "I know. Frank told me. Rebecca's boat..." "The diver made another discovery. He broke one of the ports and looked in. There was a body in there—Rebecca's." "No, no!" I screamed. "The woman that was washed up at Edgcombe—that wasn't Rebecca. It was the body of some unknown woman. I identified it, but I knew it was not Rebecca. It was all a lie. I knew where Rebecca's body was lying on that cabin floor, on the bottom of the sea." "How did you know, Maxim?" He turned to face me. "Because—I put it there!" He stepped nearer me. "Will you look into my eyes and tell me that you love me now?" he said bitterly. "You see—it's too late."

I could not speak, with the horror, the stunning surprise of what he had said. And then I could not resist throwing my arms around him.

"It's not too late!" I said desperately. "You're not to say that! I love you more than anything!"

"It only took you a few minutes to make Mama a breakfast tray—but I'll be cooking the rest of my life!"

in the world... please, Maxim, kiss me, please. We've got to be what we've never been—together, close! How could we be close when I know you were always thinking of Rebecca? How could you ask me to love you when I knew you loved Rebecca still?"

"You thought I loved Rebecca? You thought that? I hated her." "I could not believe my ears. Then he poured out what was in him. He paced up and down, speaking quietly, reflectively. "They told me I was the luckiest man on earth when I married her... she was so lovely, so accomplished, so amusing. I believed her, completely—but I never had a moment's happiness with her... She was incapable of love, or tenderness, or decency. I found out about her four days after we were married. She stood there—on that cliff at Monte Carlo, where you first saw me—laughing, her black hair blowing in the wind. She told me all about herself—everything... things I'll never tell a living soul. We made a bargain—she would play the grand mistress of Manderley, and I would be able to save 'the family honor.' He spoke the last contemptuously, searching my face for belief."

"I kept the bargain—and so did she—apparently. But then she began to grow careless. She took a flat in London... began bringing her friends down there. There was a cousin of hers—Favell." "I know him," I said. "He came here the day you went to London." "Why didn't you tell me?" "I didn't like to. I thought it would remind you of Rebecca."

"Remind me! As if I needed reminding! Favell used to visit her here—in this cottage. It went on, until I couldn't stand it any longer. One night I came down here to have it out with them. I found her alone—Favell hadn't come. She looked ill—queer. Suddenly she got up. Maxim got to his feet. "When I have a child," she said, "neither you nor anyone else can prove that it wasn't yours. You'd like an heir, wouldn't you, Max, for your beloved Manderley?" She began to laugh. "What a thrill for you, Max, to watch my son grow bigger day by day and to know that when you die—Manderley will be his!" She laughed again, and faced me. She said, "Well, Max, aren't you going to kill me?" And then I struck her. She moved towards me, laughing. Then suddenly she stumbled and fell. When I looked down, she was lying on the floor. She had struck her head on a piece of ship's tackle. I remember wondering why she was still smiling... And then I realized she was dead. "But you didn't kill her... it was an accident!"

He went on, recounting how he had put her into the cabin of her boat, sailed a safe distance from shore, opened the sea cocks and sunk the boat. "Maxim," I asked, "does anyone know of this?" "Frantically, I began to tell him what we must do, that we must say he made a mistake in identifying the body, that Rebecca was dead, and could not bear witness. He was not listening. "I told you once that I'd done a very selfish thing in marrying you," he said, holding my arms very tightly. "You can understand now what I meant. I've loved you, my darling—I shall always love you—but I've known all along that Rebecca would win in the end!"

"No! No!" I exclaimed. I elunged to him. "She hasn't won! What ever happens now—she hasn't won."

Your Own Horoscope for Today

By ALICE DENTON JENNINGS, Noted Atlanta Chirologist.

What today means to you if you were born between:

March 21st and April 19th (ARIES)—Before 4:30 p. m. is an auspicious period for meetings, plans and projects. Both of a business and social nature. This is a favorable hour for seeking the aid of important friends, and for efforts pertaining to friends, the home or where the element of pleasure is involved.

April 20th and May 20th (TAURUS)—Previous to 12:14 p. m. favors general business activities, dealings with executives and officials and seeking favors. Between 12:14 p. m. and 10:07 p. m. discretion should be used around domestic affairs.

May 21st and June 20th (GEMINI)—Work that requires time, old affairs, dealings with other people, real estate and conservative affairs should meet with progress during the entire day.

June 21st and July 22nd (CANCER)—Vagueness and indecisiveness marks work where groups, fraternal affairs and humanitarian interests are involved before 1:00 p. m. and it may be well to keep in mind a future date. After 1:00 p. m. should be a favorable time to expand your activities.

July 23rd and August 22nd (LEO)—The morning hours and until 1:41 p. m. are the best hours of the day, favoring general business and investments. After this period, headstrong tendencies should be curbed.

August 23rd and September 22nd (VIRGO)—Previous to 2:41 p. m. guard your health. The evening hours suggest caution in traveling and avoid sudden changes.

September 23rd and October 22nd (LIBRA)—Previous to 1:31 p. m. is a very heady period, favoring conservative work, dealing with people of a stable nature, real estate, tackling hard jobs. Between 1:31 p. m. and 6:12 p. m. does not favor new beginnings, but continuing with old jobs.

October 23rd and November 21st (SCORPIO)—Today will be a day of many interruptions, upheavals, and things which are probably thought had been forgotten, may suddenly come to light, therefore the day does not favor making voluntary changes.

November 22nd and December 21st (SAGITTARIUS)—Between 8:57 a. m. and 6:04 p. m. favors general business, legal interests, seeking small favors and work relative to the household. The remainder of the evening, good results can be derived by turning your activities towards the practical things of life.

December 22nd and January 19th (CAPRICORN)—The day does not favor important plans, decisions or changes, but is slightly favorable for attention to minor matters, especially those things which are arduous, old and of a serious nature.

January 20th and February 18th (AQUARIUS)—Before 9:08 a. m. favors ideas that are slow and steady, but the entire day does not favor new beginnings and beginnings. Stick to routine matters.

February 19th and March 20th (PISCES)—Previous to 7:26 p. m. favors general business, home and social activities. After 7:26 p. m. and continuing throughout the evening favors deferring important decisions, for your mind may be filled with impatience, criticism and dissatisfaction. These qualities do not aid in making important decisions.

THE CONSTITUTION

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING

Information

CLOSING HOURS

Daily Want Ads are accepted up to 5 p. m. for publication the next day. Closing hour for the Sunday edition is 7 p. m. Saturday.

LOCAL CLASSIFIED RATES

Daily and Sunday rates per line for consecutive insertions:

1 time, per line 25 cents

3 times, per line 22 cents

7 times, per line 20 cents

30 times, per line 16 cents

10% Discount for Cash

Minimum: 2 lines (11 words).

In estimating the space to an ad figure 5 average words per line and 6 average words for each additional line.

Ads ordered for three or seven days and stopped before expiration will not be charged for the number of times the ad appeared and adjustments made at the rate earned.

Errors in advertisements should be reported immediately. The Constitution will not be responsible for more than one incorrect insertion.

All Want Ads are restricted to their proper classification. The Constitution reserves the right to revise or reject any advertisement. Answering advertisements, never send original letters of recommendations, as they are seldom if ever, returned. Always send copies.

Ads ordered by telephone are accepted from persons listed in the telephone or city directories. Memorandum charges in return for this courtesy the advertiser is expected to remit promptly.

WRITER COMPARES NEGLECT OF NEEDY TO FLOGGINGS HERE

Local Woman Writes
Grand Jurors, Urging Adequate Relief; Data in Constitution Cited.

It is just as barbarous for Fulton county to starve its dependent thousands of unemployable persons as it is for gangs to flog citizens, Mrs. Mary W. Athearn, of 99 Second avenue, S. E., wrote Kendall Weisger, foreman of the grand jury, yesterday in urging more adequate relief financing.

Following is her letter to the grand jury, which this week is to make its recommendation on the relief tax levy:

"Every decent citizen has felt himself personally outraged at the recently reported instances of barbarous brutalities perpetrated on members of our community. We earnestly hope that you, gentlemen, of the March-April grand jury, will use every means at your command to put a stop to such depraved activity and to make it impossible in the future.

"But I submit to you, gentlemen, that it is equally barbarous for responsible citizens of this county, by while thousands of their neighbors, sick mentally, physically and morally are without means to meet the most elemental creature needs. Will not this condition affect the health of our own and future generations of our citizens? Will not the men, women and children who are the victims of this torture of deprivation so build up resentment and bitterness against the community that neglects them that this spirit will become a moral contagion to affect not only our own, but future generations of our citizens?"

"You have the facts, based on the courageous and thoroughgoing study made by The Atlanta Constitution. You are urged to consider these facts. Because of these facts I wish to add my request that the March-April grand jury recommend the two and three-quarter mill levy to the Fulton county commission for a more adequate provision for the suffering men, women, and children of Fulton county."

GYPSY SMITH JR. HOLDING MEETINGS

Services Conducted Nightly at First Presbyterian Church.

The Rev. Gypsy Smith Jr. is conducting a series of special meetings each night at the First Presbyterian church, 1328 Peachtree street, the Rev. William V. Gardner, pastor, announced.

Mr. Smith is the son and namesake of the great evangelist. He was associated with his father for many years and was trained by him.

Services are being held each night at 7:30 o'clock and the Rev. Mr. Smith preaches both morning and evening services on Sunday. He will conclude his series of meetings Easter Sunday night.

A native of England, the Rev. Mr. Smith came to this country many years ago and in 1920 became a naturalized citizen. His home is New London, Conn.

DRIVER ACCUSED OF FLEEING CRASH

Three Charges Face J. L. Karr After Collision.

Charges of reckless driving, leaving the scene of an accident, and drunk driving were filed against J. L. Karr, of a Davis circle address, yesterday by County Policeman Hugh Perryman, following an investigation of an auto collision Tuesday night at Howell Mill road and Bishop street.

Perryman said Karr's auto skidded into another car driven by F. M. Swain, of 658 Travis street, and charged Karr then left the scene and called county police and reported his car stolen. His bond was set at $1,000.

Franklin Swain and Lillian Whitfield, a nurse, suffered minor injuries in the crash and were treated at Grady hospital. They were occupants of the Swain car.

WINDS EXPECTED TO CHASE RAINS

More Than 2.30 Inches Pour on Atlanta.

Shifting winds were scheduled to blow Atlanta's rainy weather away last night but the city had plenty of drenching by noon yesterday.

The Weather Bureau reported that 2.30 inches of rain had fallen by that hour—and it rained during the afternoon, too! Today will be mostly cloudy and colder, with a low temperature of about 35 degrees. Yesterday's temperature range was from 36 to 39.
